EDITOR'S BODY FOUND IN RIVER

Coshocton Publisher Weighted Down With Heavy Objects; Missing Three Days.

SUICIDE VERDICT IS GIVEN

Coroner Blames Ill Health; Campers Discover Body in Stream.

By The Associated Press

COSHOCTON, O., Aug. 23—A verdict of suicide was returned this afternoon in the death of Fred S. Wallace, 61, editor and publisher of the Coshocton Tribune, whose weighted body was recovered from the Muskingum river last night.

The verdict was announced by Coroner Floyd W. Craig after he and Prosecutor Russell E. Lyon had investigated the case. The prosecutor concurred in the coroner's decision.

Craig said death was caused by drowning. He expressed the belief that the militant editor, despondent because of ill health, had fastened the weights to his body and then jumped into the river from a railroad bridge near where the body was found.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 2:30 p. m. with burial here.

Wallace was last seen alive when he left the newspaper office early Sunday, apparently to walk to his home a block away.

Son Asked Search

For two days his family feared he had suffered a lapse of memory. Yesterday his son Robert, a Cleveland newspaper man, asked authorities to make a statewide search for his father.

Two young men camping along the river found the body on the edge of the stream. The head bore cuts over the right eye and ear, his ankles were bound with baling wire, a plow-point was fastened to his clothing, and a hammer had been stuck in his belt.

The pockets contained slugs similar to those used in printing offices, Wallace's watch, and a spectacle case. At the Tribune office employes reported the publisher's bill-fold and other valuables had been left there.

Wallace had been ill, but this had not interfered with his active management of the paper. The Tribune's circulation manager was the last person to see him alive, as the paper was finishing its Sunday edition. He said the publisher seemed to be in good spirits.

County authorities said Wallace's car had not been removed from the garage at his home. The campers who found the body told police they saw an object they thought was a log floating in the river Monday, and suggested they might have seen the man's body at that time.

Editor 20 Years

Wallace came here about 20 years ago from Springfield, where he was born, and had been publisher and editor of the Tribune since that time. Besides his son Robert he is survived by his widow, Letitia Wallace, and two sons, William, mate on a steamship now on the Pacific ocean, and Bruce, a high school student here.

Wallace was a militant editor, writing strong editorials favoring prohibition. At the outset of the World war, he opposed participation by the United States. He was widely known for his single tax views, and only a few weeks ago started a campaign against the NRA. He charged the NRA was merely another bureau "creating jobs at the expense of the taxpayers" and was "bound to fail" because the government was "tampering with private industry."

City Gives Welcome To Ohio Insurance Agents

Delegates to Thirty-Seventh State Convention Arrive; Leaders Discuss Business To Come Before Sessions of Two-Day Meeting.

Marion today was host to delegates to the thirty-seventh annual convention of the Ohio Association of Insurance Agents, in session here today and Thursday in Hotel Harding.

While early registrations gave little indication of the attendance, it was expected that by Thursday at least 200 insurance men from over the state and visiting national association officers from other states would be present.

Crowding numerous affairs into a two-day meeting, members of the executive board and officers last night and this morning were preparing a proposal for reorganizing the association as a corporation. Along with other business matters, this proposal was to be discussed this afternoon.

Point To Benefits

Benefits of incorporating, officers said, would mean principally better representation of the state and increasing harmony between insurance men in large and small communities. The proposal contemplates the division of the state into nine districts, each to furnish a member of a board of trustees to replace the present executive committee.

Speakers at the morning and afternoon sessions today were C. C. Rudibaugh of Youngstown, state president; C. R. Laurenson of Canton, president of the Insurance Club of Canton; Clyde B. Smith of Lansing, Mich., past president of the national association; A. C. Bachman, president of the Marion Association of Fire Insurance Agents, and Rev. Howard L. Olewiler, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Marion, who gave the invocation opening the morning session.

Tonight at a dinner at the Marion Country club, the delegates were to hear Charles L. Gandy of Birmingham, Ala., president of the National Association of Insurance Agents. An entertainment program also is planned.

The delegates represent virtually every class of insurance except life.

Urges NRA Cooperation

Mr. Smith, the past national president and now president of the Lansing, Mich., Association of Insurance Agents, addressing the delegates at this afternoon's session, expressed an opinion that business in general is on the upgrade and that as association members, delegates should do their full part in making President Roosevelt's NRA program successful.

"This is no time for petty politics or slackers," Mr. Smith asserted. "If everyone cooperates, we soon will have a country whose people will be happier and more contented than at any time since the World war." He urged, however, trodding the middle path between too much prosperity and too much adversity.

Mr. Smith expressed opposition

U. S. Is Ready To Fix Selling Price of Milk

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23—The government is about to fix the price paid for the milk that is set on nearly every doorsill or porch in the country.

The plan so far is just tentative and is being written by farm administration officials and dairymen. At most, the officials feel, the result should be an average increase in cost to the consumer of one cent a quart.

It would work this way:

For the country as a whole, there would be a central blanket agreement, covering all fluid milk and outlining policies and fair trade practices. Codes then would be drawn for each milk shed, each area producing and consuming its own milk. These would fix the farm, wholesale and retail prices of milk.

If a majority of fluid milk producers and handlers accepted the blanket agreement, it and its supplementary codes would be effective on all.

Individual areas, however, which held price adjustments necessary because of special conditions, would be allowed appeals.

If their appeals were convincing, the prices could be changed.

Also included in the plan is the idea of limiting to five or six cents the difference between what the cow owner gets for his milk and what the drinker pays for it, thus restricting the middleman's profit, the "spread."

Some of the smallest communities, where the producer also distributes his milk, would be excluded.

POLICE TRAP JUNK THIEVES

One Marion Man Shot, Second Escapes, After Union County Burglary.

AUTHORITIES TIPPED OFF

Burglars Fired On as They Refuse Officers' Command To Halt.

One man was seriously wounded and another escaped when Union county authorities surprised two Marion men this morning in the act of stealing from the Tress Collins junk yard two and one-half miles west of Broadway.

C. A. Woodring, 25, of North Grand avenue was taken to Mt. Carmel hospital in Columbus this morning with a serious gunshot wound in his back, after pleading guilty to charges of burglary and larceny when he was arraigned before Justice L. L. Collins of Broadway.

Joe White, who lives in the east section of Marion, Woodring's relatives said this morning, was still at large at noon today. White was implicated in the theft by Woodring, officers said. Justice of the Peace J. H. Bryan of Commerville and Constable Allen Coons of York township, both in Union county, came to Marion this morning to enlist Marion police aid in the search for White. They carried a warrant for White's arrest.

Woodring was bound over to the grand jury shortly before he was taken to the county jail. Dr. Pearl Longbrake, after an examination at the jail, ordered Woodring taken to the Columbus hospital. Sheriff William Rausch took the prisoner to Columbus and at 10:30 a. m. Prosecuting Attorney Clifton Caryl left to obtain a statement from Woodring, who implicated White in his confession last night.

L. H. Collins and Clair Wyeth, Broadway officers, and several other Union county officials were tipped off that the men were to stage the burglary and were on hand when Woodring and White arrived at the Collins place of business. They watched the men load the junk and start to drive away before they ordered them to halt. The men refused to stop and the officers opened fire, wounding Woodring.

Woodring is married and is the father of three small children.

DECLINES TO FREE YOUTH FOR HEARING

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, Aug. 23 — Juvenile Court Judge Charles W. Hoffman today refused to allow John Henkel, 16-year-old ward of his court, to stand trial under an indictment charging first degree murder for the death of Oliver S. Baily, of Cincinnati society circles.

Instead, he announced he had decided to retain jurisdiction over the boy, and bring him to trial on a charge of juvenile delinquency. Conviction on the charge would involve confinement of the boy to a correctional institution.

TAX PROGRAM IS THREATENED BY DEADLOCK

House Blocks Agreement on Amusement Levy; Rejects Conference Reports.

ENTIRE BILL IN JEOPARDY

Movement To Be Launched Seeking End of Differences on Measure.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 23—Governor George White's $24,000,000 supplemental tax relief program was in jeopardy today, as the senate and house continued their deadlock on the question of exemptions under the proposed 10 per cent amusement tax.

The house apparently is adamant for exempting all admissions of 25 cents or under as it rejected two conference committee recommendations. The first proposed exemption of 15 cents and under and the second an exemption of 10 cents and under. The senate voted on either recommendation inasmuch as the house voted first, and its rejection nullified any acceptance by the upper branch.

Carries Other Taxes

Senate leaders were in a quandary as to the status of the bill which not only carries the amusement tax but also the 10 per cent cosmetic tax and the proposed bond issuance machinery and forms the keystone of the governor's program, which had been selected by the joint taxation committee.

Senate leaders expressed the belief the bill was dead unless the house reconsiders and asks for a third conference committee.

It is understood a movement will be launched today to try to save the bill by having the senate accept the house exemption of 25 cents and then extend the duration of the taxes for another six months to Jan. 1, 1937. Most leaders agree an amusement and cosmetic tax must be made the basis for the bulk of the unemployment relief program.

Leader "Through"

Should these efforts fail, leaders generally agree that it will be necessary to single out some other source of revenue and pass it as a supplementary program. Neither senate nor house was to convene until this afternoon.

Following the house's rejection of the second conference committee report Speaker Frank Cave, said he was "through" trying to bring the house together. "Richland county needs no relief and if those who do not need it cannot agree to an equitable taxation program, I'm through," he declared.

Following rejection of the 10-cent exemption by the house, many members attended a midnight preview of a picture, presented at a down-town theater. Pete Wood, registered lobbyist for the motion picture theater owners of Ohio, signed the invitations which went to the assemblymen.

STEEL PRODUCTION IN SLIGHT DROP

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Aug. 23 — Steel production has dropped to 50 per cent of capacity from 53 per cent a week ago, "Iron Age" said today.

The review reported an unexpected rebound in retail sales of automobiles, bringing steel mills fill-in orders during the past week and causing car makers to postpone change-overs to new models.

On the whole, mill bookings continue to lag, "but final adoption of the steel code has cleared the atmosphere of many of the doubts and fears that had been accumulating in recent weeks."

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23— Four of its biggest jobs were the NRA's today—the tasks of finishing fair practice agreements for coal and automobiles, solving the retailers' competitive problems and untangling labor's status in the recovery movement.

At the same time, recovery officials were set to dig into a code for the women's dress industry drafted in New York by Grover Whalen, the arbiter who brought together warring factions in that trade to compose a strike.

Farm Lessons

(Will Rogers Special)

LAS VEGAS, Nev., Aug. 23—Going to drop this off at Hoover Dam. Hope they don't irrigate more land so they can raise more things that they can't sell and will have to plow up more rows; kill more pigs to keep 'em from becoming hogs.

Looks like this whole hog destroying scheme of Mr. Wallace's is a direct slap against my old friend and companion, "Blue Boy."

What Wallace is trying to do is to teach the farmer corn acreage control, and one is just as hard to make understand it as the other. Yours,

"Tusko," Giant of Many Escapades, Dies at 43

By International News Service

PORTLAND, Ore.—No more will circus barkers round up stray dimes by calling: "Ladeeze and gent-tell-men, step right this way to see Tusko. Tusko, the ten-ton all-loe-funt. King of the mass-toe-duns. The largest pach-ee-derm in cap-tiv-itesee."

Tusko is dead at 43, a tender age as elephants go.

Gentle as a babe one day, vicious and unruly the next, America's largest and most publicized circus animal died recently, a victim of internal disorders.

Before he snapped off his nine-foot tusks in a "solitary" cell of 80-pounds steel rails where he was placed during one of his surly rampages, Tusko was heralded throughout the country as the monarch of great circuses. His huge bulk demanded a special car in which he was trundled from coast to coast.

Stories of his escapades are widely told among circus people. Portland residents will long remember his attempt to escape into the east-side residential district Christmas day, 1931, after smashing his barn to pieces and breaking all but one of his ponderous leg chains.

Traffic over bridges near Tusko's quarters was diverted while a score of expert marksmen armed with high-powered rifles waited with fingers on triggers to blast him into oblivion. Mayor Baker's order to shoot only if he broke his last chain was all that saved Tusko's life that time.

A steel water main was finally rolled near his legs and his keeper crawled through the pipe, fastened his broken chain to a steel cable from a portable power-winch and Tusko was literally wound-up.

Tusko's adventure at Sedro Wooley, Wash., was the highlight of his career. According to circus hands, Tusko resented a beating given him by a trainer called "High Pockets" who wanted Tusko to stand still while his canopied howdah and blanket were being strapped in place. As "High Pockets" jumped to the ground to complete his task, Tusko reached around, picked him up and tossed the trainer 20 feet. Then Tusko started out.

Goes on Rampage

He rumbled through the town, upset about 20 automobiles, attempted to push between two houses which stood too close together, crushed in the side of one like so much cardboard, ripped out 40 feet of fence along the railroad and played with two railroad men in a switchman's shanty like a kitten laying with mice. When the switchmen started to push open the door, Tusko would push it shut again, rocking the little building back from its foundation. Tiring of the stunt, Tusko trotted away leaving his terrified prisoners in a cold sweat.

He was captured when he tried to squeeze between two box-cars. Two large female elephants were chained to the big bull and in this manner he was returned to the lot.

Tusko's reputed bull fight near El Paso is the best-known yarn among press agent stories of doubtful authenticity.

According to the story, Tusko and another elephant were placed in a Mexican arena with 20 wild bulls for a "fight to the death." Cowmen came from far and wide to see the battle. But when the bulls were turned in the arena, they gave one look at their opponents and huddled in a corner while Tusko looked on with indifferent contempt.

Tusko came to the United States in 1900 from Siam. He was only 19 years old and but five feet high when Colonel N. L. Clark started him out on his first circus trip.

Mrs. Norwell Was 165 lbs. Lost 44 lbs. Now 121 lbs.

Mr. Norwell Was 170 lbs. Lost 27 lbs. Now 143 lbs.

"The 'unbelievable' has happened and I want to give you all the credit and praise it is possible to give. For years I and my husband have been classed as a "plump couple." I weighed 165 pounds and my husband weighed 170 pounds. We had so much sly fun poked at us that we finally decided to take off weight if we had to starve to do it.

We read your advertising and decided to follow your reducing method. I bought a large jar Sleepy Salts and both of us, my husband and I, started taking that morning dose. We also followed your advice about eating—just cut down on the sweets and potatoes—really I ate more than I did before because I didn't have that fear I was putting on more fat.

In two months I had lost a total of 44 pounds, now weighing 121 pounds. My husband had lost at the same time 27 pounds and now weighs 143 pounds, which is his natural weight. Both of us feel wonderful, too.

Your treatment is like you say—as simple as "drinking water." I really am so happy and we are having such a good time. We're on the go all the time, folks tell us that we act more like we were keeping company than married.

The enclosed picture of my husband and myself shows how well we look. Again I say that it is "unbelievable" that we should have lost so much fat. You should have seen us before we started to reduce."

Women "Generals" Rally Under NRA Banner

...n Aug 23—Women ...e collecting here for ...nst the depression,

coming from drawing rooms factory workshops and political camps

Their backgrounds are as varied as a cross-section of the nation's life could afford. But in recent years they have stood individually in their various communities for the principles now being written into the nation's life

There is Mrs Mary Harriman Rumsey, daughter and heiress of E J Harriman, the railroad magnate She heads the Consumer's advisory board which represents the buying public at all ...code hearings to ...e that prices do not take ...e rise

She has ...s insistent that women receive political appointment be ...d for professional ability rather than for mere vote-getting power

Mrs Mary Harriman Rumsey (left), head of the Consumer's Advisory board, confers with Mrs. Hugh S Johnson, wife of the NRA administrator on the complaint division. They are two of the women "generals" battling the depression.

Another aid in the consumer's board office is Mrs Hugh S. Johnson, wife of the administrator She will handle the complaint division Like the rest of the board, she is serving without pay, working often 10 and 12 hours a day nearly every day

"My reason for coming to work" she laughs over a stack of letters and telegrams 'isn't very original I just thought that every woman who can help should help And the consumer and his problems have interested me for years'

To train American housewives into the habit of dealing with establishments cooperating with the NRA is a special aim of Mary E Hughes, an aid to General Johnson

"Every woman a consumer signer" and "Every woman employer a signer of the President's agreement" are two objects before her as she seeks organization of 35,000,000 women along these lines.

EMILY NEWELL BLAIR

The value of the consumer's dollar at the store counter has been a special study of Belle Sherwin president of the League of Women Voters, who is also on the board

Then there is vivacious red-haired Rose Schneiderman, who even has been to prison for her activities based on her convictions of the need for better labor conditions

She spent her girlhood in "sweatshops" Now she represents her millions of co-workers on the Labor Advisory board of the recovery administration.

A hat to her is more than an adornment. It is the tale of a woman bent wearily over machines in hours stolen from home and children but a woman who now has her "day at court" with the effective little Miss Schneiderman as her spokesman

History Tumbles as Clock Tower of Salem Hall Is Demolished

SALEM, O., Aug 23—History is tumbling down here beneath the blows of hammers and under the teeth of saws as wreckers and carpenters demolish the old clock and bell tower of Salem's city hall in obedience to the state bureau of inspection's decree, "unsafe"

The "faneuil hall of the west," many times the scene of fiery meetings when the passions of patriotism became unleashed must lose its two-and-a half ton historic tower and clock within 30 days, Inspector Thomas Dickson of Columbus insisted

The tower hall clock was installed in 1848 on the present building which was then a market place and center of horse trading activity Later abolitionists fanned their convictions into burning zeal beneath the bell

When John Brown, famous in pre-Civil war history, and Edwin Coppock a Salem boy, were hanged with two others for their excapades in the cause of anti-slavery, the big bell tolled the news mournfully A bigger bell has since been installed

The hall developed into a meeting place of various societies Old residents recall speeches made there by William Lloyd Garrison editor of The Abolitionist, Wendell Phillips, noted orator, Olive Johnson, editor of Anti-Slavery Bugle and later the New York Times Frederick Douglas, famed Negro speaker, and other celebrities

Susan B Anthony, Elizabeth Cade Stanton, Lucy Stone, Mrs Mary Livermore, a temperance worker, and Marius Robinson active in western anti-slavery campaigns, also appeared there

But the bell and the tower are a menace to those who work in the city offices beneath and to passers-by Dickson has ruled

In the front ranks of the mo... ers are Lorin T. French, Salem clock maker and Police Chief Ralph Stoffer

French has kept the big timepiece functioning accurately for the past 20 years. He also remembers vividly when volunteer fire fighters made the building their headquarters and when smoke-eating fire horses were housed there.

Chief Stoffer has used the bell as his police call system. A few taps, resounded throughout the city, were messages to the police and firemen on their beats. It was also used to announce the location of fires

Textile Leader Sees Widespread Benefits from Leisure Provided Workers by NRA

BY GEORGE A. SLOAN
(President, The Cotton Textile Institute, Inc.)

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK Aug. 23—Greater leisure more time for personal affairs, is being newly acquired under the operation of the National Industrial Recovery Act by the American working man and woman

To what use will this new-found leisure be applied?

A practical view is to anticipate that the worker's first use of his extended leisure will be recreation.

Idealists may frown, but it is well to remember that the average working man makes his own interpretation of enjoyment of life, or, in other words, the pursuit of happiness, and it is, therefore likely that with greater leisure and means to enjoy it he will put in more hours at wholesome diversions from the serious tasks attendant upon earning a living.

Widespread Benefit Seen

The country as a whole is bound to be a decided beneficiary from the successful application of the recovery act because it is reasonable to expect that more opportunities for recreation, without worriment over means of livelihood, will make for greater contentment with life Contented workers are assuredly a strong asset to both industry and nation.

One of the reactions to be expected is an increased interest in various sports Shorter hours will give an employe greater opportunity for motoring Railroads and other common carriers will doubtless experience a sharp pickup in week-end traffic

"Back To the Country"

Shorter hours will also tend to move people farther out into the country as they will have a longer time to reach their place of employment

Added leisure will also permit the further pursuit of hobbies Those persons who had a desire for gardening, necessarily repressed on account of lack of time, will now have time for this recreation, with the chance of tangible reward

Others mechanically inclined, or who are studious by nature will have similar increased opportunity for engaging in the things they like to do Family life should also benefit from increased leisure

Travel and leisure will give people an opportunity to become better acquainted with museums and art collections historic shrines and public institutions of interest, all of them stimulative of better citizenship They will also have more time for active interest in public affairs

GEORGE A. SLOAN

American workers, in business and industry, face the not unpleasant prospect of a shorter working day and week. At the same time, economists, sociologists and business leaders see in this phase of the national recovery program a question as to what use shall be made of this new leisure. In this article, George A. Sloan, president of the Cotton Textile Institute, Inc., suggests some of the benefits possible. The code of the cotton textile industry was the first accepted under the NRA program.

Stimulus To Spending

Unquestionably there will be a greater stimulus to spend More time will be had for shopping with benefit to the storekeeper, and the farmer and manufacturer who supplies the storekeeper, with a consequent benefit to the entire economic organization of the country.

Some old-fashioned people may be pessimistic about the increase of time for idleness, but we prefer to believe that in view of the uncountable diversions which exist in modern society for wholesome recreation, the influence of leisure is certain, in the main, to be good.

Cultural Advancement Likely

The idealist need not necessarily feel that his theories will not receive attention Americans made progress culturally under the working conditions of the past With more leisure time they are bound to realize more of the better and finer experiences of life Surely, some of there benefits will be greater cultural advancement

FIRE HAZARDS ARE WORST SINCE 1919

By United Press

MISSOULA, Mont—Fire hazards in Montana national forests east of the Continental divide are the worst since 1919 headquarters for Region One of the national forests reports

Strict "no smoking" regulations have been placed in effect in the forests, with smoking permitted only in places of habitation and recognized or designated camps

There have been 259 fires in forests of the region to date burning over 1,176 acres of forest land and 410 acres of adjacent lands Region One covers Montana, Idaho north of the Salmon river, and eastern Washington.

ANOTHER CLASSY GOLF LINKS STORY

By United Press

SEATTLE Wash—Many Seattle golfers still doubt it, but Raymond R. Frazier, Seattle banker, tells the incident as the truth On No 4 hole at Seattle Golf club his tee shot stayed in branches of a tall fir tree. He and his son Stuart Frazier, could not find it or dislodge it.

In the afternoon Stuart played with Evan McCord. The latter's drive duplicated the elder Frazier's of the morning and young Frazier's caddy found the McCord ball at the foot of the tree and the Raymond Frazier ball Both balls dropped out of the tree together the caddie said

Pedestrians passing one of the large stores on West Center street scurried to cover early one morning this week when a glance skyward gave one the impression that it might be raining mops. Learns Tricks

Someone who likes to read has been training Dewey, and doing a good job of it. Dewey is a beautiful German police dog that has every resident in the South End of town for his friends. Unlike the general run of police dog Dewey hasn't a speck of temperament. He's so friendly with everyone that his owners don't even claim him any more. When license-buying time comes along, some friend of Dewey's buys his tag. Children are crazy about the big dog.

The other morning a mail carrier left a magazine on a porch step of a home in the south section of the city. The girl of the family saw him leave it, and a few minutes later strolled out to get it. It wasn't there, and looking up she saw Dewey walking away in a very dignified manner, carrying the magazine in his mouth. She went up to him and demanded her property and with a look of great resignation he dropped it at her feet.

"HELLO, SISTER" BRINGS TOGETHER DUNN AND MALLORY

James Dunn is teamed with Boots Mallory in "Hello, Sister," the comedy-drama which will be shown on the Ohio screen Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Their support is in Zasu Pitts for comedy relief, Terrence Ray for villain and Mina Gombell for a feminine villain who turns friend in the crisis.

ZASU PITTS

New York City is the background against which the story is laid, and Broadway is to Dunn what "Main Street" is to the small-town boy. Dunn was born in New York and lived there practically all of his life until the movies lured him.

Secretary "Bobbie" Fills Important Role in NRA

When the final story of the progress and achievements of the NRA comes to be written the name of Frances M. Robinson should occupy a prominent place. She is secretary to General Hugh Johnson, recovery administrator, and, like her chief, is a human reservoir of energy. Wherever General Johnson is seen so will Miss Robinson ("Bobbie" to every one in the capital) be seen. She accompanies the general on all his trips, by train, auto or plane, to various parts of the country. Although she sees codes, giving shorter hours to industrial workers, adopted every day, there is no code for her. She keeps pace with her tireless chief, spreading the doctrine of the blue eagle, pround to be a cog in the great recovery machine.

By International News Service

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23—When future historians look back and analyze this age of ours with a view to writing a chapter on the New Deal, it is not improbable that the name of Frances M. Robinson may figure largely in that portion of their work relating to the National Recovery Act.

Unsung Heroine

Although the name of Miss Robinson may be unfamiliar to many who pay breathless attention to the fluttering of the blue eagle, she is one of the most tireless laborers in the vineyard of the NRA. No doubt you who read this have seen pictures of General Hugh Johnson, recovery administrator, in the newspapers. He has been shown getting in and out of airplanes, trains and automobiles, shaking hands with moguls of industry and carrying the gospel of the blue eagle into the uttermost corners of the country. In many of those pictures you may have noticed a diminutive lady who makes gallant efforts to keep out of range of the cameras. That is Miss Robinson, secretary to Administrator Johnson and one of the most important cogs in his NRA juggernaut.

Human Dynamos

General Johnson often has been likened to something on the scale of a perpetual motion machine, and the simile is a reasonable one, but keeping step with the dynamic general is his five-foot secretary, always cool, efficient and voracious for more and more work.

When Johnson, emulating his Blue Eagle, flies on NRA business to some part of the country where his personal appearance has been found necessary, Miss Robinson flies with him, and as they skim through the air takes dictation from her chief, compiles volumes of statistics and sees to the general's mail.

On a recent flight to the Pennsylvania soft-coal area, where the recovery administrator was needed to untangle the disputes of operators and miners, Miss Robinson (called "Bobbie" by everyone here, from the President down) and General Johnson worked on a speech he was to deliver. But they found themselves at the airport before their task was completed. Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania was at the field waiting to greet the general, but the governor had to wait for 20 minutes while "Bobbie" and her chief finished their job in the grounded plane.

No Code for Her

Rarer than a day in June is the day that Miss Robinson does not see a code adopted that means shorter hours for workers in some particular industry. But for her there is no code. Day after day she grinds away at the side of her tireless chief, whose working day sometimes reaches from one sunrise to another. But "Bobbie" seems happy in her big job. True, she gets tired sometimes but on the whole she is thrilled to be a cog in the gigantic machine that is hitting on all cylinders to pull Uncle Sam out of the red.

Bobbie is well known to callers at NRA headquarters in the commerce building. Her appearance in the corridors is invariably the signal for a rush by reporters and businessmen who want some information about codes. When they can't get to see the general—well, "Bobbie" is the next best, for they are aware she knows as much about the intricacies of the National Recovery program as her chief.

FAIR BOARD BARS BEER AND BETTING

Special to The Star

MARYSVILLE, O., Aug 23—Beer will not be sold at the Union county fair, Sept. 5-8, and there will be no pari-mutuel horse race betting, according to the secretary, William C. Moore, Marysville. Decision to ban the sale of beer and the pari-mutuels from the fairgrounds has been reached by the fair board on the ground that it would make the fair unpopular in certain instances and there would be insufficient yield.

SOCIAL MEETING HELD.

RICHWOOD, Aug. 23—The Finnetta class of the M. P. church held its monthly social at the church Thursday evening. A program of music, contests and a playlet "Selling Stock" was enjoyed. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Emma Manley, Mrs. Jack Reed, Mrs. Guy Prettyman, Mrs. Anna Chapman and Mrs. Elizabeth Shoup.

BASKET PICNIC HELD.

RICHWOOD, Aug. 23—The annual W. C. T. U. basket picnic was held Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Alona Davis. Mrs. Jessie Dern read a poem, after which Rev. D. E. Rhoades of the M. E. church gave a talk. Two new members were added.

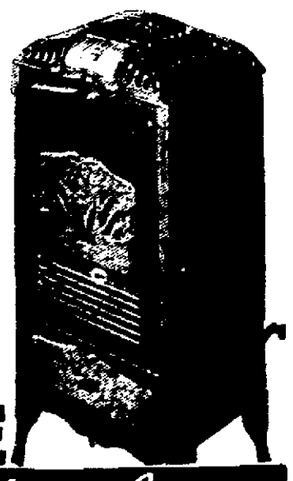
FREE COAL

... and your last chance to get a genuine Heatrola at the old price

IT'S the last call for the greatest heating offer of this or any year. A supply of Free Coal to all who place their orders for the genuine Heatrola before our store closes on Saturday night, August 26th.

That's the time limit on Free Coal. On the other part of the offer, there's a quantity limit, too. Heatrola prices went up July 8th, will probably advance further this Fall; but, during this campaign, we will sell at the old low prices all Heatrolas which we purchased before the price advance.

Remember, it's the GENUINE Heatrola we're offering, with the Intensi-Fire Air Duct and other exclusive features. And this year there are more models to choose from — a size to suit every heating job, a price to fit every budget.



Cash isn't needed. Pay only $2.00 down to assure getting a Heatrola at the old price PLUS a supply of Free Coal. When heater is installed, start easy payments, if you wish, on our generous time-payment plan.

Come in quick; or phone and ask us to call at your home.

The General's Plans.

In the announcement that General Johnson, NRA administrator, looks forward to retirement from his arduous duties not later than the end of the year, the general's countrymen see a broad hint of his outlook on the recovery program. The administrator's attitude toward his job has been disarmingly frank, in contrast to the common attitude of men engaged in experiments with a political flavor. He has insisted that he will not leave until his task has been done. On the other hand, he has reiterated that he would like nothing better than to be out from under its responsibilities.

If he is confident that he will be able to go back to his private business by the end of the year or sooner, those who are following his activities from day to day cannot help but feel a little of that confidence themselves. They have seen enough of General Johnson's nature to believe that he will keep his word about finishing the job before he leaves it.

There has been a tendency during the last few weeks to think in terms of limited time. The vague future has been left to itself while men tried to discover what conditions would be like in so many weeks or months. Thus, it was inevitable that difficulty with codes for steel, oil and coal would establish turning points in the drive. Their acceptance or rejection would mean the difference between success and failure.

Steel and oil have been placed under codes, and coal, most difficult of all, cannot stand out alone much longer. It signifies another victory for the recovery administration. From the standpoint of detail, the most difficult part of its job has been finished. There remains only a short time until General Johnson can take stock of his accomplishments to determine whether he is entitled to a rest. A hopeful country is willing to take its cue from the general's plans.

Thanks To The English.

A year or so ago when a sprightly young Englishman known as "Bunny" Austin revealed himself in shorts on an American tennis court his bravado was news. Photographers crowded around to get pictures of the innovation. The sight of a man's bare legs on the tennis court was something new under the sun.

Yet, a year later when Miss Helen Jacobs goes to work in national title play conveniently clothed in the same garment there is but little excitement. Miss Jacobs herself was apprehensive before her first appearance, but no one seemed to care a great deal. A new era in dress for women tennis players dawned with scarcely a murmur.

To the English seems to belong sole credit for this common sense reform. English women, perhaps taking their cue from the "Bunny," adopted shorts. American women have imitated them. Another year probably will find the new apparel in universal use.

Disappearing rapidly are those intriguingly ballooning short skirts made depressingly safe for purposes of concealment by adequate bloomers worn underneath. Their purpose, it can be admitted now, was about as utilitarian as an equal yardage of mosquito netting worn, let us say, about the neck—where the skirt usually seemed to be when its wearer was romping after a cross-country placement.

The skirt was a nominal concession to that dusty tradition which says a woman is not decently clothed unless her legs be encased in a billowing tube of fabric. Step for step and leap by leap, the newly popular shorts are doing a far better job. Harking back to the days of bounding Suzanne Lenglen, who introduced agility to women's tennis, the dispassionate observer will be inclined to admit that in comparison with a garment which supposedly concealed everything while actually promising to reveal everything, shorts on ladies are a distinctly conservative reform in tennis habiliment.

Mob Hate.

Continued violence by Cuban mobs reveals more fully than a change of administrations the tremendous proportions of the resentment which caused former President Machado to flee the republic. No person known to have been close to Machado is safe. Minor officials who made themselves conspicuous by their parts in his program of suppression have paid with their lives when they could be found. Some have taken their own lives rather than fall victims to mob violence. Many have fled. Others are lurking in Cuba, wondering how long it will be until someone recognizes them and summons the angry crowd.

The mob is not moved easily to bitter hatred. It is far more likely to go to excesses in the direction of admiration. Nothing but insufferable oppression could have produced the bloodshed which has been the rule in Cuba for the last two weeks—oppression far worse than most Americans knew was being practiced under Machado. On the face of the evidence, it does not seem fair to explain it on the grounds of an unruly mob spirit. It is, rather, a tremendous emotional reaction to the dissolution of a hated regime.

American interests which helped to maintain the Machado administration past the time when it would have fallen from the weight of its own unpopularity should regard closely the details of Cuba's bloody revenge. From such observation might come realization that to tinker with government is to use as sauce the lives of helpless people. Machado's hands, it is now revealed to all the world, were stained with the blood of his countrymen. The hands of interests which upheld Machado and his following bear stains of an even deeper hue.

In A Common Cause.

Marion's expression of approval and support for the national recovery program is about as near being unanimous as that of any other American community. This cannot be regarded as an exaggeration, for with nearly 800 business places, large and small, in a city of 30,000 registered in the blue eagle list, the record stands as one that can hardly be surpassed.

It is a glorious beginning, one which we naturally expect to be followed by equally glorious fulfillment through conscientious performance of duty under the pledge that has been taken. Unless this is done, Marion's widespread display of the blue eagle will become a demonstration nothing short of humiliation and disgrace.

But no one is anticipating anything but faithful, patriotic and enthusiastic maintenance of the splendid spirit shown by the community in its virtually unanimous response to the call for NRA pledges. Marion has never fallen short in sincere performance of duty and patriotic service and there is no reason to believe that this will be an exception.

There is every conceivable incentive for every citizen to give unqualified personal support to this movement, more so than in any nationwide undertaking of the past. There have been great public campaigns in which those who participated were contributing to the relief and welfare of others. In this momentous undertaking, the field is without limit. Direct beneficiaries of the NRA are to be not only your neighbor, but yourself as well. With that point made clear, there should not be a person lacking determination to do his or her full part in striving for complete success of this program.

The intent and purpose is to make the entire nation one vast partnership, functioning in a common cause. In order that this partnership yield substantial and permanent profit for all, the blue eagle cannot and must not be used as a mask for subterfuge or pretense. It must be a badge of sincere effort to comply with the pledge all have taken and to give a ring of truth and honesty to the words, "We do our part." Let no one attempt to make a raw deal out of the new deal.

Our Convention Visitors.

One of the basic sections of the nation's business structure is represented in a two-day convention opening in Marion today.

The Ohio Association of Insurance Agents is assembling for its annual discussion and transaction of organization affairs and to enjoy the social intermingling which is an essential part of such occasions.

In welcoming delegates and visitors to this convention, Marion citizens do so with the feeling that their city is highly honored in being chosen as the meeting place of the state association. They rate it as an unusual mark of distinction because of the important place which the insurance business occupies in the national life and the thoroughly efficient and dependable manner in which those engaged in the business have measured up to their responsibilities.

For many years virtually all branches of insurance in this country have won recognition and public confidence through sound, conservative and generally able management and this standard is in no way lowered as a result of the trying times through which the country and its institutions have been passing. Much to the contrary, the insurance structure has held so firmly and maintained its functions with such consistency that its rating for soundness and stability is probably higher than at any time in the past.

The evidence of strength and security which insurance organizations displayed through a period when other institutions fully as important to the people's welfare were either on the rocks or dangerously near, was one of the illuminating spots in that dreary picture. It seemed to provide proof that no storm is so devastating that it cannot be weathered if adequate preparations are made to withstand the attack.

The insurance business was not, of course, without its weak spots. Here and there some company, not so well managed as others, may have failed to meet its obligations and possibly collapsed. But as a whole, insurance as an institution proved its durability in a period of dire stress and in so doing contributed a stabilizing influence of immeasurable value to the nation.

It is with a sense of appreciation of this record of efficiency and service that Marion voices its pleasure at having representatives of the insurance business as guests. We hope their stay here will be so enjoyable that they will be in a receptive mood as we extend them a cordial invitation to "come again."

Comment of the Press

CLEAR THE RAILS.

There is a growing feeling in railroad circles that the carriers are at the beginning of a new era that will reaffirm their position as the foundation of the American financial structure.

The railroads have been notoriously conservative. They have delayed always in putting into effect some program that will restore business and compete adequately with other carriers.

While the railroads yelped for legislation that would curb the competition of the highway trucking concerns they made no effort to devise some plan for meeting the new freight hauling competition.

Mr. Eastman, the federal railroad co-ordinator, is now engaged in his job of making the great American railroad system click with the New Deal. All extravagances and waste will be eliminated. Needless competition between two or more railroads will be discontinued. Where there is business enough for only one railroad, Mr. Eastman will see that this business is not split between two or more roads at a resultant loss to all.

The railroads are sadly in need of new equipment. Roadbeds and rails must be overhauled. It is dangerous to go on with tracks unrepaired. The carriers know this. They are beginning to buy. This means business for the railroad equipment industry. Much new employment. Millions of dollars put in circulation. No locomotives have been ordered by American railroads in two years. It would be economy to replace many now in use. Advance engineering methods have made it possible to get the same amount of steam from one pound of coal that once required two pounds.

Even railroad passenger business has increased surprisingly. The Century of Progress exposition has been a tremendous boon to railroad passenger business. What is needed is lower passenger fares. They'll come.—Toledo Times.

Infections Traceable To Diet.

Some persons are extremely susceptible to an annoying inflammation of the mouth commonly known as "canker sore." The exact cause of this affliction is not known, but if not due to an injury, it is believed to come from a sensitivity to certain foods. Though never a really dangerous disease, I have seen sufferers from this malady extremely ill.

As a rule, the trouble comes on suddenly. A small reddened spot appears at the base of the teeth, under the tongue, or on the inner surface of the lips or cheeks. This is followed by a small blister which breaks and forms a whitish patch, which is really a painful ulcer.

There may be many such spots or canker sores in the mouth. It is an uncomfortable affliction and even the chewing of food and drinking of fluids prove difficult and painful. The tongue is coated and the breath has an offensive odor.

Some persons rarely, if ever, have this affliction while others are constant victims of it. It can be prevented by careful study of the diet and the detection of the offending food. Every effort should be made to avoid the particular article that is suspected of causing the disorder.

In addition to care in the diet, it is important to remove all diseased and infected teeth, as well as enlarged and infected tonsils. Infection of the mouth is believed to play an important part in the production of canker sores.

If you are susceptible to this disorder, I would advise that you regularly rinse or gargle the mouth with a mild antiseptic. Do this three times a day, preferably after meals.

During the acute attacks, the sores can be touched up with a piece of alum or a silver stick. This application is made to the bottom and sides of each of the ulcers. If silver nitrate is used it is best applied by the physician as it is a strong drug and when improperly applied may burn the delicate lining of the mouth. To remove the objectionable taste of the silver, rinse the mouth with warm water after each application.

Canker sores are frequently encountered in persons who fail to include sufficient "anti-scorbutic" foods in their diet. These foods contain liberal amounts of vitamin C, which protect against a disease called scurvy, as well as ailments of the mouth and digestive organs associated with undernourishment.—Copyright, 1933, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

HOBBIES AS NECESSITIES.

Probably the most contented and happiest families are those with hobbies.

It makes little difference what the hobbies are, whether they are foolish or serious—the one essential is that they be whole-souled and absorbing. They are bound to vary according to individual tastes, and even more according to age and development.

The parents' hobbies in all probability will remain the same from year to year; the older children will tend to become permanent, and the smaller fry will change from day to day or from week to week, the periods becoming longer as the hobby-riders grow older.

The chief thing is to have the ideal of a special interest set before them in earliest infancy, so that the need for acquiring a real hobby is firmly ingrained in their minds, and they have the same ambition to attain it that they have about going to college or learning a trade.

Our vocations we must have if we are to keep the bodies alive. Bread and butter and a roof to shelter us are to be gotten only by hard work at a trade or profession and holding down a job. But an avocation, a side-line, a hobby, is necessary if we are to keep our spirits and souls alive.

The man who has no thought in his mind beyond the daily routine of eating, sleeping and working becomes in time a very dull man indeed, and is likely to lose touch with friends and family because he has no vital interest outside of his merely physical and personal life.

And it becomes increasingly hard to cultivate a hobby with years. Unless the ambition is early implanted and carefully cultivated it is not apt to become an integral part of the individual.

SALMON CHASE IN WORTHINGTON.

Bishop Philander Chase believed in teaching youth to work, and when his nephew, Salmon P. Chase, afterward governor of Ohio, secretary of the treasury and chief justice of the supreme court of the United States, came out from his New England home in his boyhood to live with the bishop, the latter saw to it that in vacation he had work to keep him busy and he did not object if it was heavy and laborious work.

For a time he was employed by Elias Lewis, a Worthington builder, to carry building material and it was Lewis' boast in his later days that he had the chief justice once as his hod-carrier. It was not altogether work, of course, for young Chase. He found time to engage in boys' pranks and he is said to have wholly ruined a riding horse belonging to squire E. Burr by training it to kick when its flanks were touched by the heel. It was a familiar story of the boy Chase at this time of his life that he once left a pig he had slaughted for the bishop's table too long in the hot water and the bristles "set" and could not be removed. So he used his uncle's razors to remove the hair. He did a good job but spoiled the razors.

Sketches from Ohio's Past

AN ACCOUNT OF CERTAIN INTERESTING INDIAN CUSTOMS

There were no "cuss words" in the Indian languages, according to David Leisberger, Moravian missionary who lived among them, observed all their customs, and compiled written languages for several of the tribes. They knew nothing of profanity and were reserved in their speech, even when angry.

A widow was required to live entirely by her own labor for a year after her husband's death. No hunter would give her any of his game, since it was believed that a gun would forever after be useless if any of the meat it killed were eaten by a widow.

Indian children were never punished lest they remember the incident and avenge themselves upon reaching maturity. The father always made full compensation for any damage done by his child to the property of another.

It was a rule during the chase that if two or more hunters fired at the same animal it belonged to the oldest, regardless of whose bullet or arrow struck it. By this rule, warriors too old to hunt successfully always returned with game since they were taken along and allowed to fire a shot at animals, which they received, although the actual killing was done by a younger man. It was the rule that if one man wounded an animal and another killed it, the skin belonged to the former and the meat to the latter.

Tradition of most of the tribes included the story of the Deluge and several versions said that the turtle being able to live both on land and water, was the only living thing to escape. Hence the turtle was generally regarded as sacred.

After the introduction of rifles, Indians retained bows and arrows for hunting small game, since powder and bullets were too costly to be used for any excepting the largest animals.

Upon the death of an Indian, his possessions were piled in a heap in front of his tepee and each article became the possession of the first person to grab it, there being no descent of property to relatives.

A Washington Daybook

BY HERBERT PLUMMER.

Washington, Aug. 23—Because New York is the largest city in the country and Tammany so often has played important roles in national politics, a mayoralty election there always interests the rest of the nation.

FIORELLO LAGUARDIA

New York's city election this fall, however, comes in for more attention perhaps than any in recent times.

For one thing it is the only election of great importance to be held this year. No senators or representatives are to be elected until 1934. There'll be a few state contests, but aside from purely local interest the rest of the country cares little about them.

But if it were not for this fact, the presence of Fiorello H. LaGuardia, the "Little Flower," in the New York contest as the fusion candidate alone would make it a first rate show.

This hard-hitting, scrappy little individual is a national figure. Everything that he is connected with has a touch of the picturesque.

Those who have watched him in action on the floor of the house of representatives where he served before being defeated in the Roosevelt landslide last November can bear witness to his prowess as a fighter.

He was the head of a flying bipartisan wedge that did untold damage to the legislative program of both parties. He was a leader in the fight that wrecked the sales tax and many other measures in President Hoover's program.

When the Democrats got control of the house in the seventy-second congress LaGuardia was a leader of a combination of Democrats and Republicans against the carefully laid Garner-Crisp plans to balance the budget. The plans were defeated.

This will not be the first time LaGuardia has made a bid for the job as mayor of New York. He ran against Jimmy Walker one time and Walker defeated him with some half-million votes to spare.

It's a peculiar arrangement under which he is running this time. Usually in a city so overwhelmingly Democratic as New York the procedure is to pick an independent Democrat to beat a Democrat for a job.

LaGuardia is a Republican but his Republicanism is not strictly regular. In his campaign for mayor he expects the number of independent Democrats who will support him will outnumber by far the regular Republicans who dislike and will vote against him.

New York Day by Day

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, Aug. 23—Even though attendance was light-pocketed and a before season fire laid waste many blocks, Coney Island held its place in the summer sun. It was the liveliest pleasure resort near Manhattan. A certain something about Coney inspires visitors to Mardi-gras temper.

O. O. McIntyre

Not even the mightiest nabob feels a superiority over walk-up flat people. Among its regulars indeed are Otto Kahn, Willem Van Loon, Theodore Dreiser, Edwin Arlington Robinson and Lee Shubert. Coney levels life and provides the temporary illusion of a Florentine mood.

At a "Hit Him Once, One Cigar" tent a huge Negro snuffled up to the counter and exposed his gums: "Evenin' Cap' Can you use a good ordinary nigger?" Everybody laughed and they were soon hurling base-balls at his black head. Always adventure at Coney. I once saw a man known to our town as a celebrated Eastern doctor.

He was barking in front of an incubator place at Coney. Fat women in comic bathing suits waddle the streets. But not one smiles. Yet the charm of Coney is understandable. It's Time, in a prankish mood, rifling back the years.

Oliver Herford is a lion at every tea. The difficulty is to lure him from the Players where he spends his leisure. Charlie Hughes tells of one successful hostess who landed him. Clinging to a shadowy corner, he was finally collared by a lady who wondered why he did not rewrite some of the libretti of Wagnerian operas so prudent parents might take their children to hear them. "But prudent parents don't have children," murmured Herford. And slipped away.

Tin Pan Alley no longer rushes to print with fuzzie-headed topical songs as in its opulence. I thought of this on 42d street today in passing the fellow who had "They Needed a Songbird in Heaven, So God Took Caruso Away" in all the Broadway song sheet shops an hour after the great tenor breathed his last. Today the life of a song is about three weeks, as the result of radio exploitation.

The Alley was a district of faded brownstone fronts, once in the Twenties and later in the Fifties sliced into niches with enough room for piano and two people. In summer day the jangle of [illegible] lations floating out open [illegible] gave it its name. Yet from [illegible] came a nation's songs and [illegible] Berlin.

The best advice to young [illegible] invading New York was given the late Bradford Merrill. [illegible] wife of a foreign correspondent said: "You can live on $[illegible] in New York, but it is [illegible] $125." A nugget of wisdom.

Young moderns have become afflicted with a sort of vocal [illegible] that has reduced their talk [illegible] most whispers. I was [illegible] a group of them with an [illegible] tiquity on a Long Island [illegible] the other evening. Conversation was a thin blurry mumble [illegible] But I affected to follow [illegible] ing when they laughed [illegible] companion was not so tolerant. [illegible] suddenly scared the day [illegible] of everybody with a fierce [illegible] ting whistle. "I just wanted to see," he explained, "whether I had become deaf."

Of all hard of hearing [illegible] Hughes has been most accomplished surmounting his handicap. Immediately he mastered lip reading and never fails to catch every shred of conversation. Furthermore he [illegible] vaged out of deafness, an [illegible] for after dinner and public speaking he never exhibited before. When he enters a filled room he does most of the talking and makes it so extraordinarily interesting [illegible] cares to talk. Thus Rupper does not have to try to catch what others are saying.

The Boston in pensive moments sits in a corner with face to the wall. Sometimes he will remain statue-like a half hour. Being deaf he does not hear the comments. Today during one of his meditative moeurs I scrawled across a [illegible] card "The Thinker!", propped it on a chair near him and called to the neighbors. Once he sensed it, turned his head leisurely and went rather disdainfully right back to his contemplation. I probably have two of the goofiest dogs on this continent. But just the same I would not trade 100 acres of West Virginia bottom land for either.—Copyright, 1933, McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

The Marry-Go-Round

BY HELEN BOWLAND.

WOMAN—"THE WHITE MAN'S BURDEN."

Many a popular man marries, not in order to escape loneliness, but in order to achieve it. There is nothing that will keep the women off a girl-tamer's telephone so effectively as a wife around the place.

A man simply can't be clothed in dignity and a topless bathing suit at the same time, but a woman can manage to wear a mere wisp of silk with so much aplomb that you almost imagine she's all dressed up for a party.

It's not a wife's attempt to keep up with the Joneses, but her determination to make the Joneses look like small potatoes that flattens her husband's nose against the grindstone or puts him in a sanitarium.

There's always something to spoil a married man's evenings. It used to be running to the drug-store for paregoric for the baby—now, it's running to the corner for cigarets for the wife.

Half the women in the world are struggling for the right to work for a living—and the other half are struggling to find some man who will help them to stop working for a living.

Why do women always try to "standardize" beauty? Nature and Divine Wisdom never made any two things exactly alike—and the moment you try to standardize charm, you lose it.

Love is the only thing to marry for, in these days. But, alas, so many of us mistake a moonlight fancy, a monetary impulse or a half-baked infatuation for that divine and lifelong emotion—and then wake up in Reno!

The heaviest suffering a man has to bear is the hangover, the indigestion or the business worries for which he can't blame anybody—not even his wife!

ARREST MAY SOLVE THEFTS

County Officials Charge Marion Man Involved in Auto Stealing Ring.

A concerted plot to steal automobiles and sell them indirectly to Cleveland racketeers, has been uncovered, county authorities said today, by the arrest of Merle Mason, 26, of Marion while allegely selling a stolen car in Cleveland.

Mason was brought here this morning by Deputy Sheriff Chester Cosgrove and is being held in the county jail awaiting arraignment. He was arrested Monday by Cleveland detectives while, authorities charge, he was waiting for a man to bring him $250 the resale price of the stolen car a Cadillac sedan.

The car, property of Mrs R. W. Borden of Delaware was stolen Sunday night from near the Rainbow Gardens pavilion on East Center street.

Mason has confessed the theft, officials said, and further questioning is expected to divulge details of the supposed theft ring. Cleveland police are attempting to learn the extent of the ring's operations, it was said by local officers.

Officials said that preliminary investigation has disclosed what is believed to be a series of auto thefts, in which the cars were taken to a Cleveland garage and sold. The cars, in turn, were resold to Cleveland racketeers and gangsters.

In every case now known, the stolen cars were of expensive makes. The location of the other thefts has not yet been divulged by authorities.

to a uniform scale of commission for insurance agents over the country, as has been proposed in some quarters. This would amount to practically confiscation, he said. However, he continued, adoption of a contingent plan of reimbursing local agents for underwriting business in their agencies would work benefits. In many cases, these agents have reduced rates and would further lose income through closer underwriting; therefore, he said, they should be reimbursed through a share of the underwriting profits.

State President Speaks

Mr. Rudibaugh, state president, was the principal speaker at the morning session, and traced the association's growth and survival of the few years, which, he said, have been the most trying in the group's history.

The speaker touched on bills passed by the state legislature this year and expressed favor for those permitting boards of education to carry liability insurance; requiring agents of domestic casualty companies to be licensed; and one permitting municipalities and towns to carry liability and property damage on publicly owned motor vehicles.

Mr. Rudibaugh recommended that the present schedule of dues be scaled down to permit a greater number of agents to become members of the association.

Revision of dues and incorporation of the association as the Ohio Association of Insurance Agents, Inc., were the two most important matters for consideration today. The convention also was to discuss the national association's NRA code, which has been submitted to officials in Washington, D. C. for approval, although no definite action was expected.

Bachman Welcomes Delegates

Mr. Bachman, in charge of local arrangements for the meeting, welcomed the delegates at the morning session and invited them to be at home in Marion. He sketched the city's industries and attractions and paid special tribute to Fire Chief T. J. McFarland for his record in the last 30 years. A majority of the delegates are engaged partly at least in the writing of fire insurance. Mr Bachman said the city is proud to be host "to such a splendid representation from all parts of the state of the men who furnish the power that has made the insurance business the country's greatest economic balance wheel."

Concluding sessions are to be held Thursday morning and afternoon with election of officers scheduled for the evening session.

Among the national officers attending the sessions are Edward J Cox of Fall River, Mass., chairman of the national association's finance committee, and Kenneth H Ba[illegible] of Greensburg, Pa., member of the national association executive committee.

GOVERNMENT TO BUY 250,000 OHIO HOGS

Part of Plan To Cut Five Millions from U. S. Pork Supply.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 23—Under the emergency plan of the agricultural adjustment administration, effective today, Ohio farmers will be in position to sell some 200,000 pigs and 50,000 sows to the government.

The plan calls for premium buying of spring pigs under 100 pounds at the regular markets at attractive prices, and farrowing sows at a premium, in order to remove a potential supply of two billion pounds of pork from the market. The government plans to buy 4,000,000 pigs and 1,000,000 sows throughout the entire country.

Prices paid for spring pigs will remain uniform during the period of about a month in which the emergency plan will be operative. These prices will be $9.50 a hundred for pigs weighing from 25 to 30 pounds, and ranging downward for the heavier pigs to $6 a hundred for those weighing from 95 to 100 pounds.

Sows will be bought at the daily market price plus $4 a head without dockage. The sows, subject to inspection, must appear ready to farrow within three weeks and weigh at least 275 pounds.

out that local agreements to limit store hours, are contrary to the NRA purpose, which is to make more employment by cutting workers' hours and hiring more people to round out the remaining time.

The retail store issue uppermost as hearings were reconvened on the agreement embracing all but food and drug dealers, was the need for working out hour and wage levels to protect, on a competitive basis, small establishments both in outlying areas of big cities and in lesser communities.

Promises Statement

The union question had been brought to such a pass by the bituminous coal and automobile codes with their open shop formulas, that Johnson promised an early statement to clarify just what may and may not be said in industrial pacts beyond the mandatory reservation to labor of a right to free organization for collective bargaining.

The administration has repeatedly asserted that nothing may go into a code which can be interpreted as curtailing this right. It also has refused to lend itself, or its influence, to unionization of any industry.

JURY OPENS KIDNAP PROBE UNDER GUARD

By The Associated Press

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 23—Under the watchful eyes of more than two score heavily armed guards, a federal grand jury was summoned today to return indictments against the alleged kidnapers of Charles F. Urschel, just one month and one day after the oil millionaire was snatched from his palatial townhouse.

Brought to bear against the alleged abductors in an effort to win life sentences against each of them, principals and accomplices alike, were the siege guns of the government's war on rackets and kidnaping—Leslie B. Salter and Joseph B. Keenan, special assistant attorneys general, aided by District Attorney Herbert K. Hyde.

Harvey Bailey, much-wanted "master mind" of spectacular crimes, will face trial for the kidnaping here before being taken befor other courts, Hyde said. Bailey may be tried later for the June 17 slaying on the Kansas City union station plaza of four officers and Frank Nash, ex-convict. Bailey could be hanged for conviction of murder in Missouri.

POLICE IN SEARCH FOR MARION MAN

Marion police today were searching for Pearl Carter of Marion, who escaped yesterday from the Columbus workhouse where he was serving a six-months sentence for non-support.

Carter was committed to the workhouse on Aug. 7 after sentence was passed by Municipal Judge William R. Martin. The non-support charge was filed by Carter's former wife, Mrs. Iva Shields, who charged him with not providing for two children, a boy and a girl since July 6, 1931.

Carter was brought here for trial from Jackson, O., where he had been living with his parents, authorities said. Part of the search will be instituted in that vicinity through officials there.

MARION READY FOR N R A CELEBRATION

Hill and J. W. Llewellyn, both members of the post, will act as parade marshals.

Addresses by Mr. Raffa and Congressman Fletcher will be principal features of the meeting in Chautauqua pavilion.

Poultry and egg dealers from Marion and 12 nearby counties met here last night to study their proposed national code and consider rules for fair practice among dealers. Fifty-three dealers attended the meeting.

While other campaign workers completed arrangements for tonight's meeting, Mrs. Grover Snyder pushed forward plans of an NRA organization of Marion women to conduct an intensive drive next week to urge every resident of the county to sign NRA consumer's pledge and to post an NRA emblem in every home in the county.

Supplies Exhausted

Many Marion employers who since Monday have signed certificates stating they have complied with the blanket agreement regarding working hours and wages of employes were unable to exchange the certificates for NRA posters and stickers at the postoffice yesterday. Postoffice officials said the supply of posters and stickers was exhausted Monday afternoon and that more probably would arrive from Cleveland today or Thursday. Employers presenting compliance certificates at the office yesterday were advised to hold them until the new supplies arrived. The Cleveland office of the NRA, which has been furnishing supplies for Marion and other cities in this district, reported to Postmaster French Crow that its supply of posters and stickers had been exhausted and that more had been ordered from Washington. Up to Monday afternoon, 757 employers had signed compliance certificates and obtained posters and stickers.

Marion Kiwanians Thursday will turn their luncheon program over to an NRA speaker. A plan for bringing producers, dealers and consumers under the NRA program will be outlined.

Poultry Dealers Study Code Here

Fifty-three poultry and egg dealers representing approximately 95 per cent of the dealers in Marion and 12 nearby counties conducted a detailed study of their proposed national code at a meeting in Hotel Harding last night.

They also suggested to the Ohio Poultry, Butter and Egg association that another provision relating to fair practice be added to the national code, which is now awaiting approval by the federal government.

The proposed amendment would require retail merchants who make a practice of purchasing eggs from farmers to buy eggs at a price which would enable the storekeepers ro resell them at current wholesale prices and make a profit. This would break up what many dealers regard as unfair competition on the part of storekeepers, one dealer said.

N R Baker of the Fairmont Creamery Co. of Columbus who has been in close touch with the proposed national code gave a detailed explanation of provisions of the code.

Edward Gray of the Gray & White Poultry Co of Tiffin and Kenton spoke on provisions of the code relating to fair practice.

It was learned at the meeting that approximately 50 per cent of the poultry and egg dealers in this district have signed, the NRA blanket agreement and are operating under its provisions pending action on the national code. Dealers predicted that all poultry and egg dealers by Sept. 1 would be operating under a temporary code, or, if it is accepted by that time, the national code.

The meeting was in charge of Lewis Seckel and S T Doyle of Caledonia and George Underwood of Marion.

Canton Boosting Employment

By The Associated Press

CANTON, O., Aug. 23—Canton industries, preparing for adoption of an NRA code, have been absorbing new labor at the rate of 330 men a week and several wage increases were announced prior to approval of the steel code so that its formal adoption, in the opinion of industrial leaders, means only continuation in the steady improvement which has been in effect for several months.

Employment in the city's 68 leading industries, mostly connected with the steel trade, has doubled since the improvement started in March. With five months of improvement during which every week showed a gain, the number of employes has increased from 6,839 in March to 14,443 last week. The payroll, it is estimated, has tripled because of increased wages and a shorter working week.

Club To Study NRA Campaign

Marion Kiwanians will devote the program hour of their Thursday luncheon in Hotel Marion to a study of plans for the NRA educational campaign to be launched Aug. 28.

The speaker will be Delmar G. Starkey, director of publicity for the Columbus Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Starkey will explain details of a plan he originated to bring every person, from producer to consumer, under the NRA. His plan will be followed in Columbus when the NRA educational campaign is launched next Monday.

Kiwanians have invited members of the Marion NRA campaign committee, headed by Mayor W. C. Phillians, to be guests, and also have invited a delegation from the Ohio Association of Insurance Agents, convening here today and Thursday in the thirty-seventh annual convention.

Wives Traded by Army Officers for Love's Sake

By The Associated Press

LEAVENWORTH, Kas., Aug. 23—For love's sake, two army officers have traded wives legally.

Says Captain William B. Bradford:

"It is natural for a man to fall in love with another man's wife and for a woman to fall in love with another man's husband."

Thus, he explained why Mrs. Stuart MacDonald, a brunette, became Mrs. Bradford, and his own wife, a blonde, became the wife of Major MacDonald.

All was accomplished in a friendly manner by the two couples, well known at Fort Leavenworth. Together, Mrs. MacDonald and Mrs. Bradford went to Bentonville, Ark., where they established residence to take advantage of the 90-day divorce law. They lived in the same house. They were represented by the same attorney.

After Lee Seamster, judge in chancery, granted the decrees, the two husbands appeared to complete the strange marital exchange. Together they went to the county clerk's offices and secured marriage licenses. Then both couples were married by Frank Lloyd, justice of the peace.

Captain Bradford and the former Mrs MacDonald have returned to Fort Leavenworth. Major MacDonald and the former Mrs. Bradford have gone to a civilian camp in Pennsylvania where he is stationed.

JUDGE HITS DELAY IN LAMSON HEARING

Announces Intention of Speeding Up Murder Trial of Stanford Man.

By The Associated Press

SAN JOSE, Calif., Aug. 23—Seeking to get quickly to the heart of the case against David A. Lamson, charged with murdering his attractive wife, Allene, Superior Judge R. R. Syer announced today he intended to speed up the selection of a jury.

The second day of maneuvering by defense and prosecution over the selection of jurors left six women and six men in the box and each side had 13 more peremptory challenges remaining.

While the state persisted in questioning of talesmen on their views of circumstantial and direct evidence, and sought the elimination of those who did not favor either circumstantial evidence or the infliction of the death penalty, the defense brought the name of Dr. Frederick Proescher, county pathologist, into the immediate proceedings.

Dr. Proescher is to be one of the state's most important witnesses. Through his testimony the state is expected to seek to prove that a 10-inch length of iron pipe found in a bonfire which Lamson had been tending in the yard of their Stanford university campus home was used to beat Mrs. Lamson to death.

Each talesman was asked whether he was acquainted with Dr. Proescher, giving rise to the belief the defense would fight any testimony by him.

enlist women of the city as consumers cooperating with the program; Mrs. Alfred Donithen of Waldo, to enlist women in all towns and communities in Marion county, and Mrs. O. E. Thomas of near Prospect, to do the same work among women in the rural districts. Each of these women is to appoint her aids.

As soon as supplies of consumers' pledges are received, this work will be put into immediate action.

Throughout the entire NRA campaign to date, the Marion Chamber of Commerce has been a vital factor. The Chamber has furnished a clearing house for the committee's work and made it possible for the committee to fulfill its purpose of a contact group between individuals and the administrative forces of the NRA movement.

FAVORABLE BALANCE OF TRADE REPORTED

Exports of U. S. Overcome Poor Showing Made in June.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23 — The United States had a favorable trade balance of $2,000,000 in July with exports worth $145,000,000 and imports worth $143,000,000. It had a small unfavorable balance in June.

The foreign trade was much more active in July than in the preceding month, with the value of exports increased 21 per cent and the value of imports, 17 per cent.

The gains were contrary to the usual seasonal movement and represented the third consecutive monthly advance and the second month in which trade was larger than in the corresponding month of 1932.

For the first seven months of the calendar year, exports amounted to $814,341,000 and imports to $735,195,000, giving this country a favorable balance of $79,146,000.

HOOVER DECLINES TO APPEAR AT DETROIT

Information Wouldn't Help, Ex-President Says, Refusing To Make Trip.

By The Associated Press

PALO ALTO, Calif., Aug. 23 — Having announced his knowledge of the Detroit banking situation last winter would not warrant his going there now to appear before investigators of the financial collapse in the Michigan city, former President Herbert Hoover retired today to the privacy of his Stanford university campus home.

Mr. Hoover had been requested by Prosecutor Harry S. Toy of Detroit to appear as a witness at the investigation there into the closing of the First National Bank-Detroit and the Guardian National Bank of Commerce.

The information sought by the Detroit investigator concerned the attitude of administrative agencies of the federal government toward the two closed Detroit banks previous to March 4, 1933, during the Hoover incumbency.

"I have no objection to furnishing such information which I properly can," Mr. Hoover replied, "but such information as I can give is only general and is mostly second hand, and is insufficient to warrant a journey to Detroit."

He suggested the investigators approach the reconstruction finance corporation, the federal reserve and treasury officials at Washington, where he said, he was certain information could be obtained.

SCIENCE JOINS FIGHT ON SLEEPING ILLNESS

By The Associated Press

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 23—Science rallied today to an intensified fight against sleeping sickness, mysterious malady which has killed 18 persons and attacked 182 others in St. Louis and vicinity.

A third government expert rushed here from Washington and went to work in an attempt to determine if insects spread the disease. Meanwhile, as three deaths in the last 24 hours swelled the fatality list here to 18, the disease broke out in five other mid-western communities.

Dr. L. L. Williams Jr., medical entomologist, joined Dr. J. P. Leake and Dr. Charles Armstrong, public health physicians who are aiding local authorities in an effort to find a cause, carrier, preventive or cure for the disease.

Reporting to headquarters in Washington that he felt sure the spread of the disease was not due to water, but that he wasn't certain he could exclude insects as a cause, Dr. Leake asked for Dr. Williams whose specialty is insects as disseminators of disease.

100 At First Meeting On Wheat Crop Control

Government Agent Explains Program to Farmers; Second Group Will Meet Tonight.

Marion county's wheat reduction program was officially opened last night when more than 100 wheat farmers of Green Camp and Big Island townships attended the first of a series of community meetings in the Green Camp school building.

R. H. Gilbert, emergency agricultural assistant for the county, distributed application blanks to more than 75 of the farmers. At a second meeting in about two weeks these application blanks are to be turned in by those wishing to join the government's curtailment program. At that time they will be given contracts of agreement.

Second Meeting Tonight

Tonight farmers of Salt Rock and Grand Prairie townships and that part of Big Island township north of route 30-S will meet in the Morral school building. This will be the second community meeting in the county and will start at 8:30 p. m.

Last night's discussion was in explanation of the program. Some of the questions, with answers by Gilbert, follow:

If I come in on the wheat plan, on how many bushels will I receive adjusted payments? On 54 per cent of your past average production for the base period. This is your allotment, on which the payment will be made.

If I take part in the wheat plan, how much must I cut my acreage? The exact amount will not be known until Thursday, when Secretary of Agriculture Wallace will set the amount. The reduction, however, will not be more than 20 per cent of your average acreage in the years, 1930, 1931 and 1932. It may be as little as 10 per cent.

Three Years of Payments

For how many years will I receive the adjusted payments if I join the Marion County Wheat Production Control association? Adjusted payments will be made for three crop years, 1933, 1934 and 1935, in return for two years of deliberate reduction. For this year's crop, a payment of 20 cents a bushel will be made on each bushel of your allotment this fall, and another payment of between eight and 10 cents a bushel when all seeding of wheat in your locality has been completed.

If I do not sign up for the wheat plan this year, can I come in later? No. This is a plan which gives three years of adjusted payment for two years of reduction and you must sign up now or wait until after the 1935 crop year.

What restriction does the wheat plan place on my sales of the wheat I grow? None. The plan has nothing to do with sales. You can market your wheat when, where and how you wish.

ederal government pays the from $7 to $20 an acre, de- pending upon the average yield of the land, for each acre destroyed. Or else gives the farmer a chance to buy its holdover cotton at six cents a pound to sell now at above 10 cents, or to hold for sale later at an even greater profit as the price soars.

That's only the immediate cash profit, negligible to the tremendous returns that are expected this year to stuff southern pocketbooks with at least a billion dollars.

Another $200,000,000 profit came to Dixie through the leap in price from six cents to above 10 cents on the 8,500,000 bales held over from crops of last year and previous seasons.

15 cents this year's crop, curtailed

With cotton expected to touch by 3,500,000 bales through the crop destruction program, should sell for a total of above $750,000,000

Add Another Million

Thrifty southern farmers whose forebears furnished them with a strong strain of Scotch blood, have found means of adding still another $1,000,000 to their profits from their voluntary crop destruction.

Instead of plowing the 10,000,000 acres under, the planters are harvesting the plant with its tender leaves and unmatured bolls as fodder for their cattle.

Analysis of the plant by Dr. W. F. Hand of Mississippi State college, one of the South's most able chemists, has proved it to be superior in protein and fat content to alfalfa hay.

The "cotton hay" idea has come at a time when the South is facing an acute shortage of feed supplies. Yield of hay is a third less than last year, pastures are short and the Dixie corn crop is millions of bushels shy.

WHITE HOUSE GETS GEORGIA BISCUITS

Order for Three Dozen Weekly Filled by Farm Woman.

By International News Service

ATHENS, Ga.—Bread and water from Georgia have received the official okay of President Roosevelt and the White House family.

The water, well known, is at Warm Springs, Ga., where the President has found health and pleasure in the warm waters which gush so miraculously from the folds of hte middle Georgia hills.

The bread, a less known fact, comes from here where Mrs. Charles N. Hodgson, who conducts a 200-acre dairy farm, bakes beaten biscuits, the fame of whose delicate crispness reached to the White House.

Mrs. Roosevelt, visiting Atlanta this winter, tasted Mrs. Hodgson's beaten biscuits at a party given in her honor. She inquired and the hostess told her where they were obtained.

An order promptly came from the White House housekeeper for three dozen beaten biscuits weekly.

Mrs. Hodgson uses milk from her dairy farm in her beaten biscuits and she makes all of them herself. She was asked the secret of her technique.

"I beat them until they pop three times," she said.

For Action and Energy, Gen. Johnson Has Few Equals in Washington History

About the dynamic General Hugh S. Johnson, director of the National Recovery Administration, center activities electric with his energy. When he arrives at his desk before 9 a. m. daily already he has concluded a session with his deputies. Soon comes a press conference illuminated by some of the general's crisply picturesque phrases. There is a vast volume of mail regarding the NRA campaign for higher wages and increased employment that the general goes over—in the picture shown assisted by his secretary, Miss Frances Robinson, and Marvin McIntyre, one of President Roosevelt's secretaries. Perhaps a busy day's schedule may find Johnson hopping a plane for a quick trip to tie up some loose ends of his campaign. All in all, there's little rest on the Johnson calendar.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23—Never in the memories of the newspaper corps here "has there been such a man in Washington" as Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, industrial recovery administrator.

Energy seems to crackle from him like so much electricity.

He knows the seriousness of his job in getting the wheels of industry humming again. And yet, he works easily, never seems flurried, even has time for a smile and a quip.

Newspapermen surround him as he approaches his office in the morning. He smiles.

"Not a thing now," he say. "Give you a wad later. Busy as all get-out."

All in a Day's Work

He swings in to his desk. Secretaries surround him. There are telegrams to answer, leters to dictate, long distance calls to pick up. He takes it in a deliberate, rhythmic stride.

He has time pared to a bone. Not a move or a word seems wasted. He knows the boundaries of his job to a hair-line, and he refuses to waste time outside.

"What are you doing about general wage scales?" he was asked.

"That's not my baby," he barked genially.

And the questioner left willingly to find out what he should have known. The general has imbued the halls of the department of commerce with such wholesome respect that his word is law.

That does not mean he scatters terror. He is no czar. He is a government mediator. He never forgets it. But as such he wants to know everything definitely and completely.

Attends Code Hearings

He sits in on all code hearings at some time. Huge auditoriums of business executives and labor representatives wait for him. On the stage are his deputies and advisers. The general comes in. He slumps in his chair, but his eyes dart here and there. He even seems to know that he can save time by relaxing physically while his mind races.

His picturesque phrases delight those around him. But he uses them in no childish attempt to draw a laugh. He utters them with a serious, flashing look, using them for his one purpose—speed. The picture phrases save time.

Particular On Personnel

He was asked about the personnel he was choosing. He explained his need for men he knows well.

"We can't put in men who'll get their pants traded off," he said.

His face is deeply lined, his large eyes alert, intelligent. His broad shoulders speak of strength. He walks briskly. His manner would make friends in a mine or a drawing room.

He gets less pay than some of his aids. His own business is forgotten.

Hired An Objector

Recently a well known executive approached him full of protests his industry was going to fight.

"Maybe," smiled Johnson slowly "But you're going to stay here and work for me." And the man stayed. He is working harder now than he ever has before.

The aids—and all Washington—are set to the tempo of this new "commander-in-chief" who gets up at 6, digests the newspapers, holds a breakfast conference of deputies, and then arrives at his office before 9 o'clock.

He is bound to his desk until a luncheon conference, which is an informal affair. He and the men he has summoned rush across the street to eat and talk. He takes out two hours for dinner and a brief walk with his little fox-terrier, Toughy. Then he is back at his desk at 10 to work past midnight. He usually gets four hours sleep, and he says that is all he needs.

The next day is just the same. There is no rest for this David as long as the Goliath of the depression still breathes.

SHOE OX TEAM

The aid, mostly in the form of advice, came from 30 persons who gathered around the blacksmith shop to witness the strange seen. The oxen were shod for. the chances are slow. We rarely notice them.

Mr. Farley, postmaster general, who has a good deal to do with running President Roosevelt's election next time, says his re-election in 1936 is certain.

That seems certain today. It would hardly be worth while for the Republicans to nominate. But other years, other conditions. In 1936 Franklin D. Roosevelt will be the most popular or the least popular man in America, depending how NRA works. Nobody knows that better than he.

A story going around, perhaps without foundation but interesting, runs:

Some one said to a high personage: "Franklin D. Roosevelt will either be the best loved or the most hated President in history." The high personage replied: "He will either be the most successful president of the United States or he will be the last president of United States." Meaning that failure of the big experiment would result in Fascism or some other "ism."

TROUBLE IN INDIA, as usual. Poor Gandhi continues to starve and weighs little more than 90 pounds, only a trifle above the weight of a skeleton.

There is an endurance limit even in a well-disciplined Hindu body. If Gandhi should die it might mean trouble for the British, although he would have killed himself.

Another trouble came with an eclipse of the sun. The Hindus had been told about it, information posted up everywhere, but when it came there was agitation, though only among the uneducated masses. Fortunately cloudy weather minimized fear in many districts.

We need not sneer at the Hindus. Not so long ago Dean Swift in Ireland, having told his parishioners—Protestants—that there would be an eclipse of the moon at a certain hour, so many gathered around his study that it disturbed him. He sent out word: "The eclipse has been postponed by order of the dean," and they all went home.

CHINA is borrowing ideas from Russia, or perhaps she had them before Mr. Stalin started.

A Shanghai train ran off the track. 52 to 56 killed. It was decided that some one has been careless, so three Chinese railroad men may have their heads cut off.

Russia inflicts capital punishment for carelessness in operating railroads and other government property, although murder itself is not punished with death unless a government official is the one murdered.

heavy rain, mountainous waves and floodlike lowering skies.

Schooner Helpless

The North Carolina coast also was being pounded by mountainous waves and an unknown fate was in schooner No. 1 was helpless off the shoals near Nomini, while coast guard craft stood by unable to give any assistance.

New Jersey also reported the brunt of the storm as the tail end of the hurricane continued to be buffeted. The 500-foot municipal pier at Cape May was washed away and telephone and electric lines were torn down.

The violent storm was described variously by navy and weather bureau officials as of hurricane or near hurricane intensity.

Capital in Path

Weather officials estimated that the storm, which weaved a course of a big snakelike curve, has come up from the south, and its present north westerly direction it would pass over the nations capital before night fall.

Although it left a trail of disorganized shipping in its wake, weather officials were of the opinion its force would be considerably diss ated when it moved inland.

Nevertheless R. H. Weightman, weather bureau forecaster, said the storm which early today battered against the Virginia coast had done the unusual for a disturbance originating in the tropics by striking north of Cape Hatteras with great intensity.

He said the disturbance was not "hurricane intensity" but that no winds had been reported to observers here as yet which would put it in that category.

However at the navy department officials of the bureau of aeronautics asserted that the storm off the Virginia capes had reached "force 10, the most severe recording of a storm." It was described as a "hurricane."

Homemaker's Question Box

Question — I have a white panama hat which has become quite soiled I would like to clean it myself Can you suggest a good method for doing this at home?

Answer—A closely woven light-colored straw hat such as a panama, leghorn or milan can be cleaned by washing in lukewarm soft water and a neutral soap.

First brush the hat to remove all surface dust. Rip off all trimmings, threads and linings which might fade or discolor the hat when it is wet. Make a thick suds of the soap and water and apply it with a soft brush or cloth directly to the hat, wetting only a small section of the straw at a time Have a second cloth and bowl of clean soft water at hand and rinse each section as quickly and thoroughly as possible Dry it immediately with a dry absorbent cloth Always stroke in the same direction during the whole process as scrubbing back and forth loosens and roughens straw Do not allow the straw to become wet through or the hat will lose its shape and require reblocking All straw will look somewhat coarser after washing

If the straw is coarse and loose-woven to begin with, and it becomes wet through, it will probably slide and may even come apart. Be very careful in handling the hat to keep it smooth and in shape

No matter how quickly you have worked the hat will be somewhat damp when you finish. A generous padding of clean, white tissue paper should be stuffed into the crown and the hat should be placed on a hat rack in the shade to dry

"All right," he said. "But step on it. The power boat will be along shortly—and it's moonlight."

"We'll keep out of the moon path," she answered. "If they haven't started yet, we'll be so far away they'll never see us."

THE launch spurted out from the bank. Colin dragged his hand in the water, and at moments surreptitiously bathed his head. There was no sign of the power boat. She had nursed the engine to top speed. The launch was cleaving the smooth water like an arrow.

Suppose Lazarre lived? Suppose Lazarre died? In either case Lazaree would no longer be here—on the north shore. What was he to do? A though flashed through his mind—startling him. He pondered it a moment. The germ of it grew—flourished. Like the next chapter! That ubiquitous analogy!

"Colin," she questioned anxiously, "are you really all right?"

"Absolutely!" he lied convincingly. "My wrists were a bit numb at first, of course, but they're as good as ever now. I'm perfectly fit, dear—but just lazy, willing to let you do the work."

"Did"—she hesitated—"Lazarre—did you?"

"Yes," he answered. "I got him out without much difficulty. But I'm afraid he's in rather bad shape—which isn't so good."

"Tell me about it," she said; "tell me everything—when you feel like talking."

"I'll tell you now," he said.

He told her—in detail—except that he made no mention of a gun but that had crashed against his skull. It took a long time. They had rounded the point, and were heading for Cap a l'Orage when he had made an end of it.

"We needn't worry about the power boat any more, no matter where it is," she said irrelevantly. "They'll head straight across for the Caspe shore." Then, pertinently: "But what was it that has been going on down there underneath the power house? What was in those little bundles you saw Dollaire's men carrying away?"

He shook his head.

"I don't know," he said. "I wish I did; but, after all, no matter what it was, it doesn't alter things one iota as far as you and I are concerned." His lips drew into a straight line. "The Mask still forbids our banns."

"What are you going to do now, Colin? What are we going to do?"

He sat motionless for a moment, then he struck a match and looked at his watch.

"You'll be back home and in bed by half-past three—not later anyway than four. No one will know. no one is to know, that you've been near the club. That's the first thing. If you get pulled into this, so do I—in which case if I know the Mask at all you'll mourn a husband-to-be."

"Colin!" she cried out poignantly. "Don't say that!"

"It's absolutely true," he said; "but it isn't as cowardly as it sounds. If the Mask doesn't get a look at my cards, I think I've got more than a fair chance of winning the last hand—and that means our happiness, dear.

"Ethically, perhaps, we may be momentarily compounding a felony by not speaking right out in meeting, but that does not mean that Dollaire will not get his deserts in due course—or the others either. I promised you that the other night. But the Mask is at the bottom of all this, and he comes first. Do you agree?"

Her hand closed over his.

"YES," she said, "but what are you going to do, Colin?"

"I'm going back by the Bonaventure tomorrow."

"Colin!"

"If Lazarre lives, he'll eventually land up in New York. And meanwhile there's—the Wine Press."

"But you do not know what that is, or where it is, or anything about it."

"I know it's in New York; and that, if it isn't actually the Mask's headquarters, it's at least where his orders come from. I'll find it."

"But, Colin"—her voice was breaking—"he knows you. You said so yourself. You'll be recognized, and—"

"Not this time," said Colin quietly. "I'll see to that."

"But how?"

"I don't know yet. But don't worry, dear—there are four days in which to figure that out before I even reach Quebec."

She made no immediate reply. She devoted herself to the engine. Later she opened the locker beneath their seat.

"Coffee and sandwiches," she said, with a little catch in her voice. "We must keep a lookout for Dollaire's schooner at the cape, mustn't we?"

"He'll be away long before we get there," Colin answered. "Germaine, dear, it'll all come out right."

She nestled close to him.

"Oh, Colin," she whispered, "I'm terribly, terribly afraid. Isn't—there some other way?"

His arms were around her.

"It's the one chance—for both of us," he answered buoyantly. "We'll win. You see."

It was 4 o'clock in the morning when they reached Cap a l'Orage. There were no lights in the village. No one was astir.

To Be Continued.

The Stars Say

For Thursday, Aug. 24

THE PLANETARY configurations bearing rule on this day stimulate to a fine degree of initiative and enterprise, this following upon the breaking up of a long crystallized or stagnant state of affairs. It is admonished that the heightened powers be directed into constructive channels.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of definite creative work with the energies and faculties all stimulated to high pressure achievements, following close upon a stagnant and congested state of affairs. Elderly persons and institutions as well as rings, mergers and secret societies will be found ready to assist constructive propositions. Real property should increase.

A child born on this day should be active, energetic, and substantially equipped for much success in life, being favored by solid persons and corporations. It should be versatile in writing and sound in judgment.

Notable nativity: William Walter Phelps, jurist.

States ranking highest in education have been reported by the commissioner of education as leading in per capita wealth and showing greater per capita purchasing power.

IN RECOVERY POST

The task of keeping the nation's women informed of the workings and progress of the NRA falls to Miss Mary Woolley, former Mount Holyoke College professor, of Boston, who is shown at her desk after being appointed Educational Director of the Women's Division of the NRA.

Given in Marriage

BY ADELE GARRISON

Avis Arlen, Discovering the Flight of the Honeymooners, Proposes That She and the Boys, Bob and Ronald, Chase After Them.

WHAT DICKY calls "the well known fat" was certainly in the fire. I realized that, as I rushed out of the door behind Avis Arlen, who was traveling at a double-quick pace toward the living room.

"Avis!" I called shrilly, but she either did not hear me or pretended that she didn't and though my fists instinctively clenched as I followed her the exigencies of good breeding forbade my even looking daut when I caught up to her, just as she accosted Bob and Carolyn.

"Listen, you folks!" she said excitedly, but keeping her voice low. "Something's slipped up, somewhere. Didn't Bill and Hank say that Mr. and Mrs. Tiger went across the fields that time when they saw the kitchen door open and thought Mary and Noel were coming out?"

She gave to Noel's name the slurring, caressing intonation which she always employs when speaking it, and again I felt my fingers curving into facile fists.

Avis' Proposal

"Yes, yes," Carolyn and Bob said in unison, and Ronald, after a swift look at Marion, added, "That's what they said."

"What have the Tigers got to do with it?" Marion demanded. "When I rushed down just now and told you Noel and Mary were gone, and that we must catch them at the car, you said to wait a minute, and we've been waiting; though why in the world—"

She was talking against time, I felt it, and I knew that she did, also. For there was a triumphant light in Avis' eyes which I was sure meant mischief.

"You won't find them at the car," Avis said. "They've been gone nearly 10 minutes."

"Ten minutes!" Marion ejaculated weakly, but her tones lacked conviction and Avis swept relentlessly on.

"Yes, 10 minutes. You either went to sleep at the switch or else—"

She paused, letting her implication sink in, and then turned dramatically to the others.

"Mr. and Mrs. Tiger are in the kitchen this minute. Ask Mrs. Graham if they aren't."

"Yes, they are there," I admitted coolly. "What of it?"

"Then who went across the fields 10 minutes ago?" she asked. "Hank and Bill said they were the Tigers. Of course, the answer is easy. They must have been dressed in Tigers' clothes."

"Good gracious!" Bob ejaculated, and caught Carolyn by the hand. "Come along, Carol! I see it all. Their new car was over at Tigers'. They're probably well on their way by now, but we ought to be able to head 'em off before they get off Long Island. I'm game to get down to Queensboro bridge and wait for 'em. What about the rest of you?"

"I don't think our mothers would stand for a stunt like that," Marion said doubtfully to Carolyn, and Carolyn pouted as she answered.

"I'm shouting sure mine wouldn't. She might not care about our scouting around this end of the island, but she'd never stand for our going that far, and racing as we'd have to. No. But—that's out!"

"But I'm with you, Nova," Avis spoke up quickly. "My mother won't care. In fact I won't tell her anything about it. I know the girls won't mind my going with you. Come on, let's go! Oh, I'm so excited!"

She was stimulating girlish enthusiasm very prettily, and I knew she was appealing to the wild love of adventure—the rebellion against restraint—which is characteristic of Bob. I was sure of Ronald's reaction, but I wondered what Bob's response would be to her proposal.

CARDINAL PERFORMS TREMENDOUS TASK

Aged Aid to Pope Assembles Codes of Church Law

By International News Service

VATICAN CITY—In spite of the fact that he is 81 years old Cardinal Gasparri formerly papal secretary of state to Pope Pius 11th and before that to Pope Benedict 15th is finishing a task that would appall many a young man

He is now more than half way through the work of unifying all the codes of canon law of the eastern churches which acknowledge the Pope and the supremacy of Rome

Of the 12 big volumes for the canon laws 10 are ready and printed and the other two in the press He presented the 10 to the Pope who received him at the head of the commission for the codifying of canon law of the oriental rite The Pope was astounded at the amount of work done in less than four years

Before tackling this code Cardinal Gasparri spent years of leisure snatched from his duties as papal secretary to revise and clarify the text of the canon law for the western church in itself a monumental work

The new task is a romance in archeology, history, tradition and legislation The codes have been collected from the Copts the Persions, Syrians, Egyptians Arabians, Kurds Armenians Cipriots and Christians of Palestine The general public ignores the fact that the millions of Christians in these countries have never adhered to the Orthodox Church but acknowledge the Pope's supremacy

Now— Resolutely Act.....

Marion espouses the "New Deal" and signalizes this espousal with a city-wide demonstration at Garfield Park tonight.

Marion gave a great president to these United States, and with the pride of this distinction exemplified its patriotic accord with the "Spirit of '33" by immediate and whole-hearted mobilization of forces to fulfill President Roosevelt's program for a new and happier day.

Marion, conscious of her traditions, presents a united front. This August 23rd marks the triumph of this citizenry over conditions that have been universally demoralizing. From this hour Marion marches forward optimistically, determined to contribute its full share to the benediction to society the NRA contemplates.

These are days when unselfishness must reign—when employe must cultivate an understanding of the employer's temporarily aggravated problems and the consuming public, above all, remember that a revolutionary undertaking as the NRA entails hardships to employers that call for sympathetic tolerance and encouraging cooperation. The great burden is on the employer and he is loyally shouldering his responsibility with scarcely any complaint, hazarding his all on a colossal experiment the success of which is entirely dependent on sustained support of the purchasing public.

Withhold snap criticism. There is an important and constructive role for every one in this stupendous drama of National Recovery, and when success is achieved—and it will be—the glory can be shared by every American.

Now — Resolutely Act with unselfish cooperation.

THE MARION CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

KARL W. SCHELL, President

NRA MEMBER U.S.

"Must we go on in many groping, disorganized, separate units to defeat or shall we move as one great team to victory?"

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT

Only unified action and united effort can achieve so great a task as the President and his N. R. A. staff have outlined. It's a mighty plan born of great leadership, initiative, force, understanding and patriotism. But it requires the cooperation of many contributing factors to work out its successful operation.

The best brains and the most efficient organizers in all industrial, labor, agricultural, financial and social service divisions of our country have been called upon to aid the President in formulating the most equitable, constructive and workable plan. The job is progressing magnificently but the ultimate goal can never be reached without the complete cooperation of those units which it seeks to serve the manufacturers, retailers, workers, farmers and all American citizenry.

That is now the call of the N. R. A. . . . a call that is arousing dynamic response everywhere; a response so overwhelming that the voices of the few shirkers and dissenters are completely lost in the great acclaim of true Americanism.

We cannot fail because the plan is sound, sane and serviceable. It grasps the immediate situation of conquering depression and it establishes for the future a strong foundation of humane practice in dealing with workers and meeting the standards of high-purposed industries.

What the Blue Eagle means to you and how you can get it

The President's Reemployment Program is advancing to complete success. No such sweeping demonstration of the unity of a whole people against a national danger has ever been made. • In this vast surge of patriotism it is necessary to keep our common purpose always clear. When 125,000,000 people attempt to act as one man there are sure to be some misunderstandings. It is time to restate as clearly as possible the aim of the whole endeavor and the duty of each individual. • That is the purpose of this message—to state officially, briefly and clearly the simple rules for common guidance. • It is an evidence of the self-sacrificing service of the whole country that this newspaper has donated this space. In that spirit the whole country is acting. • This plan depends wholly on united action. That unity is almost complete. In the next few days let us close up every gap in the ranks and nail the flag of the Blue Eagle on the door of every man who works another man. Hugh S. Johnson

OFFICIAL EXPLANATION OF THE PRESIDENT'S REEMPLOYMENT AGREEMENT

(Sometimes miscalled "The Blanket Code")

This Agreement binds you to put its terms into effect from the time you sign the Certificate of Compliance until December 31, 1933, but when the President has approved a Code for your trade or industry, that Code takes the place of this Agreement.

You agree:

Child Labor

(1) After August 31, 1933, not to employ any person under 16 years of age, except that persons between 14 and 16 may be employed (but not in manufacturing or mechanical industries) for not to exceed 3 hours per day and those hours between 7 A. M. and 7 P. M. in such work as will not interfere with hours of day school.

This means that after August 31, 1933, you agree not to employ any children under 14 years old in any kind of business. You may employ children between 14 and 16 years old, but only for three hours a day and those hours must be between 7 in the morning and 7 at night, and arranged so as not to interfere with school. You agree not to employ any children under 16 years old in a manufacturing or mechanical industry, at any time.

Maximum Hours

(2) Not to work any accounting, clerical, banking, office, service, or sales employees (except outside salesmen) in any store, office, department, establishment, or public utility, or on any automotive or horse-drawn passenger, express, delivery, or freight service, or in any other place or manner, for more than 40 hours in any 1 week and not to reduce the hours of any store or service operation to below 52 hours in any 1 week, unless such hours were less than 52 hours per week before July 1, 1933, and in the latter case not to reduce such hours at all.

This means that you agree not to work any of the kinds of employees listed in this paragraph (except outside salesmen) for more than 40 hours a week. This paragraph covers all employees except factory workers, mechanical workers and artisans. However, no limit on hours and no minimum wage applies to purely agricultural labor, domestic servants, or persons working for you solely on a commission basis; but, if you have persons working for you who are guaranteed a base pay in addition to their commission, then their base pay plus commissions must equal the minimum wage.

This Agreement sets no maximum on the number of hours you may keep your business open. You agree not to keep your wholesale, retail, or service establishment open less than 52 hours a week unless it was open less than 52 hours a week before July 1, 1933. Even then you agree to keep it open as long as you used to keep it open before July 1. Of course, if you have always kept your store open shorter hours in the Summer months you can continue to do so this Summer, but you should pay your employees the same amount each week that they will get when you keep your store open full time.

The stores with more than two employees which remain open the longest are contributing the most to carrying out the purpose of the Agreement. The stores with two or less employees which can be open only the minimum number of hours required, are doing the most to fulfill their part.

(3) Not to employ any factory or mechanical worker or artisan more than a maximum week of 35 hours until December 31, 1933, but with the right to work a maximum week of 40 hours for any 6 weeks within this period; and not to employ any worker more than 8 hours in any one day.

This means that if you are employing factory or mechanical workers or artisans, you agree not to work them more than 35 hours a week and not more than 8 hours in any one day.

When you have more than the usual amount of work to do and can't get additional workers, you may employ this class of employee up to 40 hours a week in any 6 weeks, but even in this case you must not work them more than 8 hours a day.

(4) The maximum hours fixed in the foregoing paragraphs (2) and (3) shall not apply to employees in establishments employing not more than two persons in towns of less than 2,500 population which towns are not part of a larger trade area; nor to registered pharmacists or other professional persons employed in their profession nor to employees in a managerial or executive capacity, who now receive more than $35 per week; nor to employees on emergency maintenance and repair work; nor to very special cases where restrictions of hours of highly skilled workers on continuous processes would unavoidably reduce production but, in any such special case, at least time and one-third shall be paid for hours worked in excess of the maximum. Population for the purposes of this agreement shall be determined by reference to the 1930 Federal census.

This means that there are certain employees whom you may work longer hours than are allowed by paragraphs (2) and (3) P. R. A.

If your business is in a small town (population less than 2,500 by the 1930 census) and you do not employ more than two persons, the limit on hours does not apply to these employees. If your town is really a part of a larger business community, the limit on hours does apply to these employees.

The limit on hours does not apply to your employees who are wholly or primarily managers or executives, as long as they receive $35 a week. Professional persons, like doctors, lawyers, registered pharmacists and nurses, may be employed without any limit on hours.

Where employees are doing emergency jobs of maintenance or repair work, they may be kept on the job for longer hours, but you agree to pay them at least time and one-third for hours worked over the limits set in paragraphs (2) and (3) P. R. A.

There are a few very special cases where highly skilled workers must be allowed to work more than the limit of hours in order to keep up output on continuous processes, but, here again, you agree to pay them at least time and one-third for the hours they work over the limits set in paragraphs (2) and (3) P. R. A.

Minimum Wages

(5) Not to pay any of the classes of employees mentioned in paragraph (2) less than $15 per week in any city of over 500,000 population, or in the immediate trade area of such city; nor less than $14.50 per week in any city of between 250,000 and 500,000 population, or in the immediate trade area of such city; nor less than $14 per week in any city of between 2,500 and 250,000 population, or in the immediate trade area of such city and in towns of less than 2,500 population to increase all wages by not less than 20 per cent, provided that this shall not require wages in excess of $12 per week.

This sets out the schedule of minimum wages which you agree to pay all employees, except factory or mechanical workers or artisans. The wages are set out in terms of dollars per week, but if your employees are paid by the hour, you may use the following schedule:

Place of Business: (Population by 1930 Census)	Minimum Wage:
In cities of 500,000 or over	37½ cents per hour
In cities of between 250,000 and 500,000	36¼ cents per hour
In cities of between 2,500 and 250,000	35 cents per hour

If your business is in a town of less than 2,500 population, you agree to raise all wages at least 20%. If raising all wages 20% causes you to pay over $12 per week, then you need only pay the $12 per week.

If there is any doubt in your mind as to whether your business is in the "immediate trade area" of a city, you should ask your local Chamber of Commerce or other similar organization for a decision on the matter. The general rule is that the "immediate trade area" is the area in which there is direct retail competition.

(6) Not to pay any employee of the classes mentioned in paragraph (3) less than 40 cents per hour unless the hourly rate for the same class of work on July 15, 1929, was less than 40 cents per hour, in which latter case not to pay less than the hourly rate on July 15, 1929, and in no event less than 30 cents per hour. It is agreed that this paragraph establishes a guaranteed minimum rate of pay regardless of whether the employee is compensated on the basis of a time rate or on a piecework performance.

This fixes the minimum wage which you agree to pay factory and mechanical workers and artisans. The following schedule may help you to find out the proper rate:

If the rate for the same kind of work in the same community on July 15, 1929, was:	The minimum rate which you agree to pay is:
More than 40c an hour	40c an hour
30c to 40c an hour	The July 15, 1929 hourly rate
Less than 30c an hour	30c an hour

Instead of paying by the hour, you may pay by the week at a rate which gives the same weekly earnings for a week of 35 hours. For example, instead of 40c an hour, you may pay $14 per week.

If you had a contract on or before August 1, 1933, with a learner or apprentice, you do not have to pay him the minimum wage, but no one should be classed as a learner or an apprentice who has ever been employed as a regular worker in your industry.

(7) Not to reduce the compensation for employment now in excess of the minimum wages hereby agreed to (notwithstanding that the hours worked in such employment may be hereby reduced) and to increase the pay for such employment by an equitable readjustment of all pay schedules.

Two official interpretations—No 1 and No 20—have been issued, explaining this paragraph. You can get copies of these at your local Chamber of Commerce or from the nearest N. R. A. representative.

Anti-Subterfuge

(8) Not to use any subterfuge to frustrate the spirit and intent of this Agreement which is, among other things, to increase employment by a universal covenant, to remove obstructions to commerce, and to shorten hours and to raise wages for the shorter week to a living basis.

This is the heart of the whole Agreement. The President's Plan is to cure this depression by increasing purchasing power. You can help him put this plan over by voluntarily signing this Agreement to shorten hours and raise wages. There is no force to compel you to sign this Agreement. It is not law. It is a personal agreement between you and the President. The President expects you to do everything in your power to carry out the spirit of the Agreement after you sign it. This means whole-hearted cooperation by really earning the Blue Eagle—not by just getting it and then not doing your part.

It would be a "subterfuge to frustrate the spirit and intent of this Agreement" to sign it and then put all of your employees on a straight commission basis—or any other trick to avoid doing what you promise to do.

Anti-Profiteering

(9) Not to increase the price of any merchandise sold after the date hereof over the price on July 1, 1933, by more than is made necessary by actual increases in production, replacement, or invoice costs of merchandise, or by taxes or other costs resulting from action taken pursuant to the Agricultural Adjustment Act, since July 1, 1933, and, in setting such price increases, to give full weight to probable increases in sales volume and to refrain from taking profiteering advantage of the consuming public.

The object of this paragraph is to prevent profiteering or speculation, so that prices will not rise faster than purchasing power, and destroy the President's plan. The danger to be avoided was pointed out by the President on June 16, 1933, in the statement which he made on signing the Recovery Act. He said, then:

"If we now inflate prices as fast and as far as we increase wages, the whole project will be set at naught. We cannot hope for the full effect of this plan unless, in these first critical months, and, even at the expense of full initial profits, we defer price increases as long as possible. If we can thus start a strong, sound upward spiral of business activity our industries will have little doubt of black-ink operations in the last quarter of this year. The pent-up demand of this people is very great, and if we can release it on so broad a front, we need not fear a lagging recovery. There is greater danger of too much feverish speed."

If you were selling your merchandise on July 1, 1933, below cost, you may take your cost price on that date as the basis for determining the allowable increase under this paragraph.

Cooperation

(10) To support and patronize establishments which also have signed this Agreement and are listed as members of N. R. A. (National Recovery Administration).

The success of the President's Reemployment Agreement Program depends upon public support going to those who raise wages and shorten hours in accordance with this Agreement, in order to repay them for the extra expense which they have incurred in doing their part.

Codes

(11) To cooperate to the fullest extent in having a Code of Fair Competition submitted by his industry at the earliest possible date, and in any event before September 1, 1933.

This Agreement is a temporary measure to tide over the time from now until all employers and employees can cooperate under Codes of Fair Competition under the National Industrial Recovery Act. You agree, in this paragraph, to do all you can to have a Code submitted for your trade or industry before September 1, 1933.

Appropriate Adjustments

(12) Where, before June 16, 1933, the undersigned had contracted to purchase goods at a fixed price for delivery during the period of this Agreement, the undersigned will make an appropriate adjustment of said fixed price to meet any increase in cost caused by the seller having signed this President's Reemployment Agreement or having become bound by any Code of Fair Competition approved by the President.

This Agreement will, usually, increase the costs of those who sign it. The purpose of this paragraph is to pass any such increased costs along from one signer to another, and so on to the consumer.

If you have a contract made before June 16, 1933, to buy goods at a fixed price, you agree to make an arrangement with your seller so that you pay him for the extra cost to him caused by his having signed this Agreement, or having come under a Code approved by the President.

In some cases the final buyer is the Government, which, under existing law, is generally not allowed to pay more than the contract price. The President has announced that he will recommend to Congress that appropriations be made to allow the Government to play its part by paying Government contractors who have signed the Agreement for their increased costs. The President has also appealed to the States and cities to take action permitting them to do likewise.

You should have no fear that, because your buyer has not signed, you will be left with the increased cost on you alone. The President expects every employer to sign this Agreement.

Substitutions

(13) This Agreement shall cease upon approval by the President of a Code to which the undersigned is subject; or, if the N. R. A. so elects, upon submission of a Code to which the undersigned is subject and substitution of any of its provisions for any of the terms of this Agreement.

As pointed out in the explanation of paragraph (11) P. R. A. above, the President plans to have all business govern itself under Codes, and therefore Codes should be promptly submitted. If N. R. A. finds that the wages and hours provisions of a Code which has been submitted are within the spirit of this Agreement, N. R. A. will authorize your industry to operate under those provisions rather than under the wages and hours provisions of this Agreement.

Exceptions

(14) It is agreed that any person who wishes to do his part in the President's Reemployment Drive by signing this Agreement, but who asserts that some particular provision hereof, because of peculiar circumstances, will create great and unavoidable hardship, may obtain the benefits hereof by signing this Agreement and putting it into effect and then, in a petition approved by a trade association of his industry, or other representative organization designated by N. R. A., may apply for a stay of such provision pending a summary investigation by N. R. A., if he agrees in such application to abide by the decision of such investigation. This Agreement is entered into pursuant to section 4 (a) of the National Industrial Recovery Act and subject to all the terms and conditions required by sections 7 (a) and 10 (b) of that act.

If you really want to do your part in the President's Reemployment Program, sign this Agreement. If some particular part of this Agreement causes you, as an individual employer, great and unavoidable hardship, you may obtain relief by taking the steps outlined under the heading "Cases of Individual Hardship."

Save this sheet as your official source of information. If there are any problems in your mind which are not cleared up by this explanation, get in touch with the official N. R. A. representative in your community.

   - (b) Don't Profiteer. (See paragraph 9, P.R.A.)
   - (c) Deal Only with Others "Under the Blue Eagle." (See paragraphs 10 and 12.)
   - (d) Get a Code in by September 1st. (See paragraphs 11 and 13, P.R.A.)

HOW TO GET THE BLUE EAGLE

1. Sign the President's Reemployment Agreement.
2. Mail the Signed Agreement to your District Office of the Department of Commerce.
3. Put the Agreement into Effect (as outlined above in "How to Earn the Blue Eagle").

5. Deliver the Certificate of Compliance to Your Post Office. The Postmaster will give you your Blue Eagle.

EXCEPTIONAL CASES

1. Where a Code Has Been Submitted. (See paragraph 13, President's Reemployment Agreement) If your whole Trade or Industry is unable to live up to the President's Agreement, you should get together at once, with other employers in your Trade or Industry and, in a group, submit a Code of Fair Competition to N. R. A. in Washington.

Since it takes some time after a Code has been submitted for it to be finally approved, your group may petition N. R. A. to substitute the wages and hours provisions of your Code for the wages and hours provisions of the President's Reemployment Agreement.

If N. R. A. finds that the Code provisions are within the spirit of the President's Reemployment Agreement, it will consent to such substitutions. If N. R. A. does consent there will be an official notice in all the papers. You may then put the substituted provisions into effect in place of the indicated paragraphs of the President's Reemployment Agreement. In this case you should add to your Certificate of Compliance the following clause: "To the extent of N. R. A. consent as announced, we have complied with the President's Agreement by complying with the substituted provisions of the Code submitted by the ———— Trade/Industry."

If the substitution is consented to after you have already put the President's Reemployment Agreement into full effect, and after you have already gotten your Blue Eagle, you may still put the substituted provisions into effect without signing another Certificate of Compliance.

2. Where a Code Has Been Approved. If a Code of Fair Competition for your Trade or Industry has already been finally approved by the President, you need not sign the President's Reemployment Agreement in order to get the Blue Eagle. The same is true if you are subject to a Code which has been put into effect temporarily by agreement between the President and representatives of your Trade or Industry, but in either of these cases, you must sign a Certificate of Compliance, adding to it the following statement: "We have complied with the operative provisions of the Code for the —— Trade/Industry."

3. Cases of Individual Hardship. (Paragraph 14, President's Reemployment Agreement)

If there are some peculiar reasons why a particular provision of the President's Agreement will cause you, individually, a great and unavoidable hardship, you may still get the Blue Eagle by taking the following steps:

(a) Sign the Agreement and mail it to your District Office of the Department of Commerce.

(b) Prepare a petition to N. R. A. setting out the reasons why you cannot comply with certain provisions, and requesting that an exception be made in your case.

(c) Have this petition approved by your Trade Association. If there is no Trade Association for your business, have your petition approved by your local Chamber of Commerce or other representative organization designated by N. R. A.

(d) If the Trade Association, or other organization, approves your petition, send it to N. R. A. in Washington with this approval.

(e) Comply with all the provisions of the Agreement except the one you are petitioning to have excepted.

(f) Sign the Certificate of Compliance, adding to it the following clause: "Except for those interim provisions regarding wages and hours which have been approved by the ———— Trade Association." Deliver this Certificate of Compliance to your Post Office. You will receive a Blue Eagle, but before displaying it, you must put a white bar across its breast with the word "Provisional" on it. If your petition is finally approved by N. R. A. you may take the bar down. If your petition is not approved by N. R. A. you must comply with the Agreement in full.

4. Union Contracts. If you have a contract with a labor organization calling for longer hours than the President's Agreement allows, and this contract was made in good faith by collective bargaining and cannot be changed by you alone, try to get the labor organization to agree to a reduction to the maximum hours allowed by the President's Agreement. If the labor organization will not agree, you may apply to N. R. A. for permission to work your employees as many hours a week as the contract calls for. Send to N. R. A. a request for this permission, with a certified copy of the labor contract and any statement of fact you desire. This application will be handled by N. R. A. in the same manner as an application for relief in cases of individual hardship, filed under paragraph (14) P. R. A., but it will not be necessary to obtain the approval of a trade association or other organization. If N. R. A. approves your application or is able to bring about any modification of the contract, you will then be granted permission to work employees in accordance with the contract as originally written or modified, and can then sign the Certificate of Compliance adding to it the following: "Except as required to comply with the terms of the Agreement in effect between the undersigned and the (Name of Labor Organization)."

WELL ANYWAY — HE BROUGHT HIM HOME

By United Press

MOUNTAIN HOME, Ida.—Robert Ford, sheep rancher, has more than one method of bringing home his bear. This he proved recently after he trapped a large grizzly bear on Fall Creek.

First Ford tied the animal's legs together and loaded it onto his broncho. The bear bit the ropes in half. Ford tried twice again, with the same results.

On the fourth attempt, the trapper decided to bind the bear to his broncho. It was the pack animal's time to object, however, and it ran away.

As a last resort, Ford shot the bear and carried it home on his own shoulders.

EAST-WEST TILT ON FRIDAY TO LAUNCH 1933 GRID SEASON

Former All-Americans To Dot Lineups in Game at Soldier Field.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug. 23—The 1933 football season will push off tomorrow night at Soldier field with a battle between a great collection of far western stars and a squad of talent selected from the middle-west and east.

From the tentative lineups, the contest will be a struggle between Southern California greats of the last few seasons, and the best Coach Jack Hanley of Northwestern has been able to round up from Michigan, Illinois, Ohio, Wisconsin, Minnesota and as far as West Point and Tulane. Howard Jones of Southern California, director of the western squad, plans to use at least seven former Trojans in his battlefront.

The Trojans slated to line-up for the opening kickoff are Ray Sparling, end; Tay Brown and Ernie Smith, Jones' famous tackle combination; Johnny Baker, guard; Stan Williamson, center, and Morley Drury and Gaius Shaver in the backfield. His other probable starting end is Dave Nisbet of Washington. Peter Heiser of Stanford is listed as the other guard, with Hank Schaldach of California, and Max Krause of Gonzaga, the remaining members of the backfield.

Hanley plans to concentrate on Big Ten and Notre Dame stars. In last night's practice he had Wesley Fesler of Ohio State, and Frank Baker of Northwestern at the flanks; Joe Kurth of Notre Dame, and Jack Riley of Northwestern at the tackles; Jim Harris of Notre Dame, and Clarence Munn of Minnesota at the guards, and Lawrence Ely of Nebraska at center.

Harry Newman, Michigan's all-America star, will start at quarterback, with Pug Rentner of Northwestern, an Don Zimmerman of Tulane, another pair of all-Americans, at the halves, and Roy Horstmann of Purdue at fullback.

NOTRE DAME STARS TO TACKLE BEARS

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug. 23—A team of former Notre Dame football stars under the direction of Coach Heartly (Hunk) Anderson, will meet the Chicago Bears, national professional league champions, at Soldier field Sept. 16.

Anderson is rounding up his squad and will drill the men for two weeks. Red Grange, who recently signed for his eighth season with the Bears, and Bronko Nagurski, former Minnesota iron man, have started conditioning for the contest.

Hard Fought Struggle for City Title Looms

Four Teams Evenly Matched; Gasco and Kappas To Cross Bats in Second Tilt Thursday.

With four contestants lined up at the post awaiting only the umpire's order to "Play Ball" before jumping into what promises to be a hectic struggle for honors everything is in readiness for the opening today at 6 p. m. of the premier sports event of the year in Marion, the eighth annual Little World Series for the softball championship of the city.

Only two of the four candidates for city honors will swing into action today, the other two reserving their fire until the second round of hostilities Thursday at 6 p. m. The Epworth Seniors, champions of the No. 2 Sunday school league and the First Presbyterians, title holders in the No. 1 church circuit will blaze away with their heaviest artillery in the inaugural conflict today. On Thursday at 6 p. m. the Gasco club, the first place team in the Industrial loop and the Kappas, Commercial league winners will clash. Following the Kappa-Gasco fracas, hostilities will cease until next Monday when the losers of the first two contests will meet to determine which of the two will be eliminated.

The series will be conducted as usual on the double elimination plan. Each team must lose two games before being eliminated.

Little To Choose

The records of the four series entries indicates the hardest fought and best played series in several years. There is very little to choose between the various teams. On paper, each team appears to be definitely superior in one position or another but on the whole the four are about as evenly matched as any four which ever won the right to meet in the play-off series.

The Gasco club, Industrial league champion, will probably go into the series a slight favorite with the Presbyterians a close second. The Gasco appears to have the strongest all-around lineup. The fact, however, that on several occasions this season, the "all-star" lineup of the utilities team has failed to click in the expected manner makes their status in the series a bit doubtful.

The Presbyterians will go into the series somewhat weaker than during the regular season due to the loss of two of their best players, Gabby Gallant, the third baseman and Bobby Zahn, the left fielder. Both will play with the Gasco team. The Presbyterians still pack plenty of punch at the plate and have capable replacements for Gallant and Zahn. In Shoemaker, the No. 1 church champs have a veteran in series competition and one of the craftiest twirlers in the city. Earl Castner will probably replace Zahn in left field while George Conroy will fill in at the hot corner for Gallant.

Kappers "Unknown"

The Kappas are the real unknown quantity. The Commercial league titlists breezed through the pennant campaign without difficulty but even yet their exact power is uncertain. Their opposition was below the standard faced by the champions of the other three circuits and may reflect in the team's series play. Or may not, in case you might be interested. The club's biggest deficiency is in the pitching staff. Roscoe Rank is a capable first string twirler but should he run into difficulties, Manager Marion Hinklin has no experienced pitcher to call on for relief work.

The Epworth Seniors do not have the all-around high powered lineup of some of the other entries but in Maury Whitcum, the Methodists have a flinger who is quite likely more than offset a lot of weak spots. Whitcum, pitching his first full season, has proved decidedly puzzling to enemy batters and there is no reason to believe he will lose his effectiveness in the big conflict. The team also has some heavy stick wielders to help out in the matter of sending men across the pay-off slab.

There you have a general idea of how the four teams stack up. Now forget all about it and pick your choice for the championship solely on the basis of which team you'd like to see come through. You'll have just as much chance of picking the winner that way as any other.

The admission price to the series will be the same as in former years, 10 cents a person. For the benefit of those fans who come early, arrangements have been made to furnish music, starting at 5 p. m., over the newly installed public address system which will be used to announce the game. The games are scheduled to start at 6 p. m.

NEW BLEACHERS FOR LITTLE WORLD SERIES

Fire Marshall Rules Old Ones Unsafe, Necessitating Quick Change.

When softball fans enter Lincoln park today to see the first game of the eighth annual Little World series, they will be greeted by a complete new set of bleachers. The old bleachers will have been torn down and new ones erected.

The sudden change in bleachers is the result of an order by the state fire marshal which prevented their use for the series crowds. Faced with the problem of getting bleachers in time for the first game today, the grounds committee of the city softball commission has made arrangements with Harding High school for the use of the Harding football bleachers. These bleachers will be used all through the series. They will provide an even larger seating capacity than the old ones.

Leo Keller, chairman of the grounds committee, announced at 9:30 a. m. today that the new bleachers would be erected in time for the first game today.

BRAVES VAULT INTO SECOND, TAKING 5-4 DECISION FROM BUCS

Boston Continues Sensational Winning Streak With 14-Inning Triumph.

By The Associated Press

Lightning seldom strikes twice in the same spot but National league contenders, harking back to 1914, are casting an apprehensive eye on the exploits of the Boston Braves.

There's still a long hard struggle ahead of Bill McKechnie's hopefuls before they can rival the feat of the Braves of 19 years ago who climbed from last place on July 4 to win the pennant and then the World series in successive games from the Philadelphia Athletics. But it's not impossible.

Their fourth straight triumph over the Pittsburgh Pirates and their 17th victory in 21 games yesterday sent the Braves flying into second place, seven games behind the New York Giants. McKechnie's crew was in fifth place when their winning streak began 24 days ago.

Wally Berger's 22nd homer in the 14th inning gave the Braves their 5-4 decision over the Pirates yesterday.

Sharing the headlines with the Braves were the Detroit Tigers who snapped the 13-game winning streak of the Washington Senators with a thrilling 10-8 triumph. Washington twice overcame Tiger leads but Detroit finally won out in the ninth when Hank Greenberg, big first baseman, clouted a homer with one on and two out. The Senators' defeat coupled with New York Yankees' victory over the Cleveland Indians, clipped Washington's American league lead to seven and a half games.

A triple by Bill Dickey in the ninth followed by a single by pinch hitter Joe Sewell enabled the Yankees to nose out the Indians, 4-3.

Home runs by McNair, Higgins and Finney helped the Athletics turn back the St. Louis Browns, 7-6 while the Chicago White Sox took two games from Boston, 8-1 and 4-0. Ted Lyons allowed seven hits in the opener and Joe Heving only six in the second.

RULING PROTESTED BY COLONEL PILOT

Louisville Drops Two Games; Columbus Beats St. Paul Twice.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug. 23—Manager Bruno Betzel of the Louisville Colonels, lost an argument to Manager Frank O'Rourke of Milwaukee, yesterday, but today carried his case to a higher court.

After Louisville had scored a run in the third inning of the first game of yesterday's doubleheader, O'Rourke talked Umpire Clayton into letting the official scorer make a final ruling on the play. Betzel protested, but the official scorer ruled against the run, and the Colonel leader took his case to President Thomas Jefferson Hickey of the American Association.

The Colonels lost both games, 6 to 4, and 6 to 3, with Johnny Marcum being driven to cover in the third inning of the opener. Columbus got back into action by thumping St. Paul twice, 8 to 2, and 9 to 3. Bill Lee accounted for his nineteenth pitching victory of the season in the first game, and Lefty Helse won his twelfth in the nightcap.

Toledo squared its series with Minneapolis by bunching hits for a 13 to 7 victory. The Indians did all their scoring in the last three frames, overcoming a 5 to 0 Kansas City lead.

VEECK PROPOSAL MEETS WITH FAVOR

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Aug. 23 — Strong support developed today for William L. Veeck's proposal that baseball interest be revived through a series of inter-league games in midseason and assured the scheme of thorough discussion before the 1934 season begins. There seemed to be at least an outside chance it would be tried next year.

Unqualified endorsement of the Chicago Cubs' president's plan was voiced by Alva Bradley and Stephen W. McKeever, presidents respectively of the Cleveland Indians and the Brooklyn Dodgers. Other club owners almost unanimously agreed some such radical departure from the regular order of things was needed if baseball was to climb out of the "red."

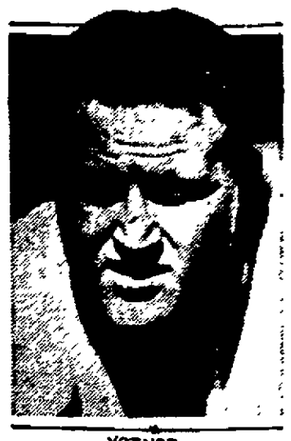
BISHOP COACH



VARNER.

Marty Varner, former Ohio State line star, has been named as a line coach at Ohio Wesleyan university. He attained prominence a year ago by scoring a touchdown single-handed against Pennsylvania. Varner kicked off, and the ball rolled into Penn's end zone. When Penn players failed to fall on the ball, Varner recovered for an Ohio State touchdown. Ohio Wesleyan faces a 10-game schedule which includes five Buckeye conference games and one with Syracuse.

Presbies Have Opportunity To Set New Mark

Should the First Presbyterian Sunday school battle its way through the Little World series to the city championship, it will have accomplished something which no other team has been able to accomplish here, namely, win two city championships. The current series is the eighth of its kind and no team has ever come through for the crown more than once, although various teams have competed in several series.

The Presbyterians held the city crown in 1931, winning the No. 2 Sunday school title and then continuing on to the city championship in the series. Last season the Presbyterians were again in the series but lost out to the K. of P., the season's champs. This will be the third straight series in which the Presbies have competed. Paul Castner managed the team last year and the year before Francis Bacon is at the helm this season.

Below is a list of teams which have won city championships since the Little World series play-offs were inaugurated in 1926.

1933 ..... ?	1929 Epworth 1.
1932 K. of P.	1928 Eagles.
1931 Presbyterian.	1927 Calvary.
1930 E. Mechanics	1926 Osgood.

YOUTHFUL SHOOTER AGAIN COPS LAURELS IN VANDALIA EVENT

Indiana Salesman Breaks 197 Targets From 16-Yard Line.

By The Associated Press

VANDALIA, O., Aug. 23—Three years ago trapshooting provided its greatest thrill when a 14-year-old boy won the Grand American handicap, blue ribbon event of the sport.

And now once more the younger generation seems to be coming rapidly to the front.

With two days of the thirty-fourth annual Grand American tournament in the record books and eight championships decided, exclusive of the veterans' race, shooters under 30 years of age have won half of the titles, although their number is very much in the minority.

A young automobile salesman from Clinton, Ind., yesterday added to the laurels of the younger group when he stood on the 16-yard line and smashed 197 targets out of a possible 200.

He was H. L. Cheek, and the event was one of the most difficult on the week's program—the race between 36 state champions.

Clark has been trapshooting only three years but yesterday he outclassed a field of veteran shooters, some of whom have been marksmen for a quarter of a century.

Professional honors yesterday went to John R. Taylor of Newark, O., when he made a clean sweep of the professional North American championships in both singles and doubles, the first time in history both titles have gone to the same shooter. Taylor cracked 187 out of 200 doubles and then went right back and broke 197 in the 200 target single event.

The women's doubles title was retained by Mrs. Walter P. Andrews of Atlanta, Ga., with a score of 87 out of 100.

GOLFER "TREED"

Dow Ahern of Willimantic, Conn., wasn't shooting for a birdie when he tried this one in the New England amateur. All he wanted was a half and he got it. It happened on the nineteenth of an extra hole match. Ahern mounted the ladder, and plopped the ball from this strange lie to the green, whence he dropped it for a half. However, he lost the match on the next hole.

Touch of Inflationary Fever Boosts Trading for Short Time.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Aug. 23—Financial markets had a touch of inflationary fever today, but it didn't last long and trading soon dropped back to its recent sub-normal routine.

There was a relatively heavy turnover of stock in the first hour with gains of fractions to a point or more scattered over a wide front. The spasm was coincident with a rally of foreign exchanges against the dollar. Sterling was up about 4 cents at one time and European gold currencies exhibited strength.

Grain and cotton were firm, but not buoyant.

Shares of U. S. Steel and New York Central were among the most active in the early flurry. The former retained about ½ a point of its gains and the latter held 2. Case threshing came back for a 5-point advance, and Deere was up about 1. Other issues that improved 1 or more included Johns-Manville, Westinghouse, Industrial Rayon, Standard Brands, National Steel and Bethlehem Steel. Alcohols and utilities were hesitant.

During the past several weeks the reserve banks have been adding about $10,000,000 weekly to their portfolios of "governments." Financial circles consider this as relatively "small buying." The reserve system has authority to purchase around $3,000,000,000 of government obligations.

WHEAT PRICES FORGE HIGHER

Extreme Gain of Two Cents Recorded in Pit at Chicago.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug. 23 — Wheat forged slowly upward today, showing an advance of about two cents a bushel at the extreme top.

A noticeable lack of pressure enabled scattered buying to pull the market up. Buying by commission houses with eastern connections, strength of stocks, continued light primary receipts and rains in the Canadian northwest threatening harvest delays all helped give wheat a firmer tone. Rye and barley were strong, rye climbing about three cents. Corn was unsettled, advancing with wheat but reacting because of a lack of support. Sharp falling off in the marketward movements of oats gave the grain strength.

Wheat closed about steady with practically all the early advance lost and unchanged to ¼ cent below yesterday's finish.

Corn was unsettled and ⅛ to ¼ off, oats ⅛ to ½ up, rye ⅛ to 1¼ higher, and provisions unchanged to 20 cents advanced.
